BILLERICA SCHOOLS ARE CROWDED

The crowded conditions of the principal school buildings in the Billerica district is now the chief topic of conversation in all the farm and mill town villages where town affairs are over- arm subjects.

Not in years has the situation been so complex. The voters who attempted to dispose of the "crowded school problem" at the annual meetings and that "special" in the spring of the year, made but little real headway, although a concerted effort was made to bring relief to some sections of the township where conditions are fast becoming intolerable.

The move to erect a new school building in the Shawheen district was expected to alleviate the situation. In that quarter, the aim being to give the villagers there a school of their own, eliminating the custom of transporting pupils in barges to the center of the town. The Shawheen problem, however, appears to be a greater one than ever, with the school still unfinished and no ground opened for a single foot of the water main that was to furnish the new school building, when completed, with ample water supply and toilet facilities.

Town officials are wondering when the water pipes are to be installed. The order for the "lay out" was placed some time ago, but no work was received from the contractor that promised to fit the order until a supply of pipe arrived this week for distribution about the town, but even now there is no indication that enough material will be found in this tardy shipment to carry out the Shawheen school project.

And with no water supply provided for the school, as ordered by the town authorities when the contract for the building was awarded, there is no possibility of opening the new school on December 1, the time when the builders hope to complete the new structure. The school situation in the Billerica district has rapidly been growing worse in regard to the housing of pupils, for the past five years or more. The increasing number of pupils from year to year, coupled with the conditions prevalent in the outlying districts, where like the Shawheen section, there has been a constant and energetic demand for district institutions for the lower grades children, has convinced the townspeople that something must be done next year to remedy some of the existing conditions, even though the increased cost will bear heavily on future tax payers.

The voters of the town are beginning to get a little wrathful with the Shawheen school situation. It is hard to find anyone praising the project at all, and a good many citizens of old Shawheen are saying, in the words saying they will not allow their children to go to that "two-room school" now being built there, but will insist upon the children being transported as they are now to the center schools.

Citizens in the center village say Shawheen voters tried to put something over on the town—that all they really wanted down there in the "Pine-hurst" section was a water supply service.

The proposition to extend the water supply to the Pinehurst or Shawheen district, has been a sore spot in town meeting affairs and public conversation, for a long time. The folks in Shawheen insist that they are continually and rankly neglected by the town fathers and say they deserve a water supply as good as that given to other sections of the Billerica.

The new school—if it is used this winter as the school committee plans providing the water supply can be provided if the pipe material is obtained in time—will only take care of the smaller pupils of the rapidly growing district, and the children of the advanced grades will have to attend the schools in the center as before.

Members of the Billerica school committee are not a unit in approving the Shawheen school project. One member of the board said today:

"I am free to say that I have washed my hands of the matter. The building committee has full charge, and anything I may do or say, would have no effect upon the project one way or another. The plan is a failure in my honest opinion is bound to be a failure of the very worst kind. The money is simply thrown away, for one thing, as this new school is to serve no useful purpose. The feeling in Billerica generally is for the erection of a new school in the center village and keep on with the transportation methods now in vogue, bringing scholars from the outlying districts to the central school institutions."

Educators of prominence in New England are condemning the old district school system right and left. Why should we continue that system in Billerica? Educational facilities

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several medicinal elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup. To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pine in a pint bottle, and fill up with homemade sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and light, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pine and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pine is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pine" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pine Co., Ft. Warren, Fed.

The Woman Behind Kemal

HALIDE EDIB HANOUN

BY MILTON BRONNER
N. E. Star Correspondent
LONDON, Oct. 24.—The woman behind Kemal.

That's what they call Halide Edib Hanoum, one of the first Turkish women of all time to make her mark in history.

She is said to be the person who has inspired Kemal Mustapha with his grandiose dreams of a revived Turkey astraddle of the straits of Bosphorus, with one foot in Europe and the other in Asia. It is she who is supposed to be constantly whispering in his ears the battle cry—"Turkey and Turkey—for the Turks!"

Romantic legend is already busy with her story and it is already hard to sift fact from fiction. It is known that she is the daughter of a Turk who was an official at the Yıldız Kiosk, the home of the sultans at Constantinople. It is known that she was one of the first real Turkish women to be graduated from the American college at Constantinople.

She has absorbed both Turkish and European cultures.

Highly cultured
She is quoted as saying:
"In the most approved Turkish housewife fashion, I can go to a market and pick out a female slave for the household and know the exact price to pay for her. And I can go to a European butcher shop like any European woman and select the proper joint of beef or mutton."

"As a Turk I can select a dancing girl and know what her services are worth. As a European, I can assume European dress, play tennis, dance in the western fashion, play the piano, sing the latest London and Paris successes and hold fluent conversations in French, Italian and English."

When very young—she is only 32 now—she married a Turkish journalist.

"Sylpho-Nathol hasn't an objection"
"Say 'disinfectant' or 'deodorant' to the average housekeeper and she pictures a messy, sticky, hard-to-use mixture whose smell is almost as unpleasant as the odor it replaces."

"That's why housekeepers are so delighted to find in Sylpho-Nathol an effective preparation that hasn't one of these objections."

Sylpho-Nathol destroys germs—they can't live where it is used, because it is 4 1/2 times stronger than carbolic acid. Yet Sylpho-Nathol is as safe to have in the house as a cake of scouring soap. It cannot hurt your skin nor injure household things.

Sylpho-Nathol banishes bad odors for good. The objectionable smells which develop so rapidly in the best cared for homes quickly disappear, when it is used. But Sylpho-Nathol's own pleasant, friendly odor doesn't linger.

Sylpho-Nathol is easy to use. A teaspoonful in a quart of warm water makes a clean-smelling, peevish-gray solution that's ready for immediate use.

Sylpho-Nathol is a year-through, every-day necessity. In mop-water it destroys the germs that get into floor cracks and corners and can't be bled by ordinary methods. It is indispensable for keeping garbage cans clean and sweet and free from unpleasant odors and disease-carrying flies.

Sylpho-Nathol is an important sanitary measure in the bathroom, for cleaning around the fixtures and as a flush for the toilet bowl. When sprinkled in cellar corners, it is a sure preventive of damp, musty cellar smells.

Sylpho-Nathol is also a splendid antiseptic which should be in the medicine chest ready for cuts, burns, bruises, sprains and other home accidents, which require prompt, first-aid treatment.

Sylpho-Nathol comes in four handy sizes, 15c, 35c, 65c, $1.25. Most good grocers and druggists have it. If yours hasn't, he can get it easily. Just ask for it by the name—"Sylpho-Nathol."

and they have several children. During the war she was a friend and confidante of the illustrious Turkish triumvirate—Enver, Talaat and Djemal. And it is at this point that romantic legend steps in.

There are three separate yarns about how she happened to join the Ankara forces.

Legend No. One—For her connection with the anti-Armenian activities of Djemal Pasha, she was exiled by the allies to the Isle of Malta whence she escaped to Ankara.

Legend No. Two—The Turkish government at Constantinople, suspecting her sympathy with the nationalists under Kemal, was preparing to arrest her for treason. But she struck up an acquaintance with a movie operator, who was also an aeronaut and one fine morning she sailed away above the white shipping minarets of the Turkish capital and landed safely in Asia Minor.

Legend No. Three—The allies wanted to keep her in Constantinople, but one moonlit night she was ferried across the Bosphorus to the Asiatic shore, where she was met by nationalists who piloted her past the English lines and to safety.

In Kemal's Cabinet
She soon played a leading role at Kemal's capital. As a Turkish woman who had discarded the Turkish veil and urged other Turkish women to do so, she was the author of a novel which attacked many of the evils of harem system, as one who nursed wounded Turks in spite of Mohammedan teachings, she captured the fancy of the women and taught them to read and write.

She became the champion of the new woman movement in Islam, saying: "Without emancipated women, Turkey will never become reunited."

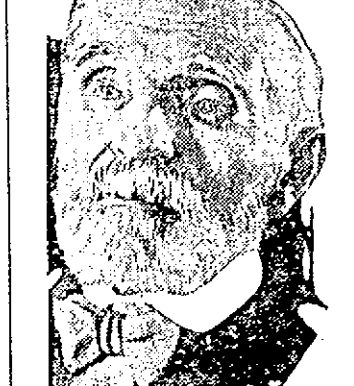

Recognizing her powers, Kemal looked at records by making her minister of education in his first cabinet. As a cabinet minister she has gone far beyond supervising education. She has been the most trusted of Kemal's advisers.

DEATH OF FORMER
LOWELL MAN

Word reached Lowell today of the death last Friday in East Rochester, N. H., of James H. Nixon, former well known resident of this city, who left Lowell for Rochester about 20 years ago. A sister, Margaret C. Nixon, still makes her residence here, while a wife, four sons and a daughter mourn his loss in Rochester.

At the time of his death Mr. Nixon was 65 years of age and had been in failing health for some time. Later he underwent a surgical operation from which he failed to recover. In his early days he was a member of the East Rochester baseball team and at one time manager of the nine. He became interested in politics and only at the September primaries, he had been honored by the democratic party as their candidate for representative.

The funeral took place last Monday morning, a regular mass being sung at St. Mary's church in East Rochester. The bearers were Dr. John H. Bates, D. C. Farrell, John McInerney, Frank Callahan, John Hartigan, and David Lacy.

FLIVERS IN RADIO FOR FARMERS

By M. E. A. Service.
CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Farmers with diver automobiles are holding out for the flivver radio set.

Many order houses here have learned this salient fact after offering present radio models to their rural customers. They have included all sorts of modern radio apparatus in their long list of commodities for farmers. But, their managers say, sale of this apparatus is like the sale of automobiles before the "flivver" became popular.

"What is wanted," they say, "is a cheap and simple, yet highly practicable, radio receiving set. Less controls, less leather, lower maintenance cost are some of the features they point as necessary before the radio receiving set will become as popular as the cheap automobile."

The farmer, these men declare, will be the one on whom the future of radio will depend. In comparison to the time when the "flivver radio" will be common, he is almost isolated from the more populous sections of the country. For, comparatively, he has the telephone and even the electric light in his homes, yet the automobile and the tractor play a more important part in their lives.

The radio will be just as necessary, say the mail order men. Latest market and weather reports, coming by radio, will make this science an essential part of the agricultural industry. But, it is pointed out, farmers cannot afford to maintain a set that may become obsolete within a few years.

For this reason they are waiting for a standard, cheap, simple and reliable set, comparable to the automobile that may be seen on almost every farm highway.

Step toward the perfection of such radio receiving set have already been made. The apparatus with the single control is already in the process of perfection. The aerial is being eliminated and there soon will be no need for ground connection.

One other important improvement to be made before radio can be said to have been perfected is that centering about the use of the storage batteries. These sources of power need recharging at intervals, which means taking them to a battery charging station for the purpose. Since the farmer is far from such stations, it is an argument against his adoption of any apparatus needing such service.

If the farmer happens to have an electric lighting system in his home, he may be able to recharge the batteries by means of one of the many forms of home charging outfits now on the market. But many farmers remain without electricity and therefore cannot make use of such an outfit. There is, therefore, little chance to sell a radio set with batteries to many of the farmers of the country.

Hearings by City Council

were present to lend the petition their moral support.

Not only will the matter be gone over in committee and in conference with the chief of the fire department, but the city solicitor will be asked to ascertain the price per foot of available lots of land on Belvidere heights and in the neighborhood of Oakland square.

The street railway hearing was brought about by the introduction of an order by Councilman Smith J. Adams, who led the indignation forces.

He presented several witnesses and spoke at length on the subject himself. The transit company was represented by Francis Fred Crowley and Fred A. Cummings, assistant to the chairman of the board. District Manager Maurice McCormick, Supt. Chas. E. Whelan and retiring manager, Thos. Lees, also attended.

Fire Reduction Possible

There was a lot of discussion and from it all there stood out the statement of Mr. Cummings that Lowell may get a fire reduction at a not too distant date, which means a considerable saving to the city.

When the meeting was called at 8:20 o'clock, Councilors Appleton and Chretien were absent.

Firehouse Question First

The Oakland petition was taken up first and President Bagley read the request for hearing.

Arthur C. Spaulding, president of the Oakland Improvement association, spoke at length on the petition. He said, "The petition for a firehouse dates back at least eight years and fell the present is ripe time for some action."

We are not asking for undue favors," said Mr. Spaulding, "but only for what we are entitled to."

Judge Stanley B. Cummings, chairman of a special committee of the Oakland association, then began to discuss the question from the standpoint of the petitioners.

He spoke of several disastrous fires two or three years ago in the Highlands and said that the city and the subsequent action on the part of the city in providing a new fire house for that locality.

"We of the Oakland," continued Judge Cummings, "now feel we are entitled to similar consideration, even though we have been visited by very many serious fires."

He called attention to the fact that residents of Belvidere hill, the Oakland, Boylston street and over Rogers street have signed the petition.

We are not here to advocate any particular site for the proposed firehouse," said the speaker, "but there seem to be sites available in or very near Oakland square."

Oakland Square Location
He quoted from a recent report of the fire inspectors, in which Oakland square is named as a site for a recommended house. This site also bears the approval of the state fire marshal and the fire prevention committee of the chamber of commerce.

Judge Cummings also quoted Fire Chief Saunders as favoring a fire house in the locality in question, equipped with a triple-combination pump.

The speaker stated the proposal need not necessitate any great expense. It said land is available for 5 and 7 cents a foot.

"The residents of this part of the city have no interest in this matter," said Judge Cummings. "They feel they are very patient and are asking only for something they are entitled to receive. It is a matter of simple protection," he said in conclusion.

Col. Charles A. Proctor, a resident of the Oakland for 20 years, spoke briefly stressing the building activity now going on there.

Bartholomew Scannell was another speaker who favored the petition.

Lawyer Joseph A. Guillet was called on. He has been an Oakland resident for 23 years. He was heartily in favor of the petition.

Another speaker was Frank P. Kennedy who at present is building a house on Butman road. He wants adequate protection against fire.

Mr. Donahue in Favor
Atty. Daniel J. Donahue said he has experienced fire in his own residence on Fairmount street. "It was the longest ten minutes I ever spent, waiting for the apparatus to come," he said. "That fire did $2000 worth of damage in less than 15 minutes and yet the firemen got there as soon as they could and did fine work after they arrived. The firehouse was too far away."

"You have given us fine taxes to pay, now give us adequate fire protection," said Mr. Donahue.

Mark Adams was the next speaker and he was followed by Jackson Taylor who favored a firehouse but to be located on the crest of Belvidere hill. He spoke of lack of water pressure.

All in favor of the petition expressed their attitude by rising and on motion of Councilman McMonahan the petition was referred to the council committee on public safety and the chief of the fire department, with instructions to report back to the council at the next meeting.

In addition Councilor Gallagher moved the city solicitor be asked to inquire as to cost of land available in the Oakland and Belvidere hill districts.

Street Railway Hearing
The street railway matter was opened by Councilman Smith J. Adams. He stated the city is entitled to adequate shelter in a waiting room.

"We have agitated this matter for a long time and all we have received are promises," said the councilor.

John S. Stratton was the first speaker in favor of the proposition. He seemed to favor allowing trolley to operate in the city. Lining his contention on the old axiom that competition is the spice of trade.

Labor Favors Reduced Fare
Parker Murphy spoke in favor of a waiting room. He represented the Lowell Trades & Labor council. He spoke against the $1 ticket now being sold by the Eastern Massachusetts. Many working people cannot afford to pay this dollar, he said. He stated the Trades & Labor council does not favor jitneys, but asks for service and adequate accommodations.

The next speaker was Mr. Gilmore of the U. S. Worsted company, of North Chelmsford. He spoke particularly of an fare being charged from the city to the town and said the service to and from the mill is not sufficient to adequately care for the many people who use that line. He favored a 10-cent flat rate from North Chelmsford to Merrimack square, and said his company seriously is considering placing auto trucks in service to transport its help.

Mr. Cummings Represents Company
Trustee Fred Crowley introduced Fred A. Cummings, assistant to the chairman of the public trustees, to handle the case for the street railway. He opened by stating the trustees are just as much in favor of a waiting room as any individual in Lowell.

"Councilor Adams has stated the trustees have promised and promised a waiting room, but never have acted," said Mr. Cummings. "Let me now have made every attempt humanly possible to secure a location for a waiting room and have been assisted by a committee from your own body, but have been absolutely unable to find one."

"I wonder if we are not laboring under a delusion," he asked. "The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company is not a private corporation, it is a public utility, being operated as well as possible by a board of public trustees, appointed by the governor. We are your servants, on the job to give you the very best service that is economically possible."

Mr. Cummings covered many phases of the subject and went into the question of revenue and costs at some length.

Hope for the Future
He stressed the fact that the road has the utmost consideration for the great riding public and stated the trustees already have in mind a reduced rate of fare for Lowell.

"I am not promising a reduction in fare," he said, "but I do say the committee will act on this matter just the earliest moment possible."

Councilor Adams asked why the Fletcher street route was abandoned. "Because it didn't pay," replied Mr. Cummings.

"We do not need a handrail from top to bottom of the car," he said, "we need a more convenient street railway water to it in agitating a reduction," said Mr. Cummings.

Favor 50-Cent Ticket
Pres. Bagley asked if it would not be possible to return the tickets of eight rides for 50 cents.

Mr. Cummings said he would not say it is not a possibility, but stated also the company found a loss of revenue when this type of ticket was being used.

When does your company propose to install a waiting room downtown?" asked Councilor Adams.

"We solicit your most enthusiastic co-operation, that is the only reply I am able to give," said Mr. Cummings.

Councilor Adams said he would and a waiting room provided the company moves its offices to a ground floor location.

Councilor Gallagher asked if there would be any objection to having car operators divide the present dollar tickets and sell each half for 50 cents.

Mr. Cummings suggested this matter be taken up with the local division manager.

Public Ownership Hinted
"We are going to get service," declared Councilor Adams, "and if the public trustees don't give it to us, perhaps public ownership will."

"Would you be surprised to know I favor this public ownership of which you speak?" asked Mr. Cummings.

"I'm glad to hear it," replied the councilor.

The hearing was declared closed at this point.

Policeman Pensioned
A few matters of routine business followed, including a vote to retire on a pension of $1200 a year, Michael J. Burns, police department electrician.

The council also voted a supplementary appropriation of $1000 to the department, although no definite amount was specified in the order as introduced by the mayor. It calls for the payment of all October, November and December payrolls and bills from general cash, said fund to be reimbursed from anticipated revenue and departmental receipts.

of the Oaklands for 20 years, spoke briefly stressing the building activity now going on there.

Bartholomew Scannell was another speaker who favored the petition.

Lawyer Joseph A. Guillet was called on. He has been an Oakland resident for 23 years. He was heartily in favor of the petition.

Another speaker was Frank P. Kennedy who at present is building a house on Butman road. He wants adequate protection against fire.

Mr. Donahue in Favor
Atty. Daniel J. Donahue said he has experienced fire in his own residence on Fairmount street. "It was the longest ten minutes I ever spent, waiting for the apparatus to come," he said. "That fire did $2000 worth of damage in less than 15 minutes and yet the firemen got there as soon as they could and did fine work after they arrived. The firehouse was too far away."

"You have given us fine taxes to pay, now give us adequate fire protection," said Mr. Donahue.

Mark Adams was the next speaker and he was followed by Jackson Taylor who favored a firehouse but to be located on the crest of Belvidere hill. He spoke of lack of water pressure.

All in favor of the petition expressed their attitude by rising and on motion of Councilman McMonahan the petition was referred to the council committee on public safety and the chief of the fire department, with instructions to report back to the council at the next meeting.

In addition Councilor Gallagher moved the city solicitor be asked to inquire as to cost of land available in the Oakland and Belvidere hill districts.

Street Railway Hearing
The street railway matter was opened by Councilman Smith J. Adams. He stated the city is entitled to adequate shelter in a waiting room.

"We have agitated this matter for a long time and all we have received are promises," said the councilor.

John S. Stratton was the first speaker in favor of the proposition. He seemed to favor allowing trolley to operate in the city. Lining his contention on the old axiom that competition is the spice of trade.

Labor Favors Reduced Fare
Parker Murphy spoke in favor of a waiting room. He represented the Lowell Trades & Labor council. He spoke against the $1 ticket now being sold by the Eastern Massachusetts. Many working people cannot afford to pay this dollar, he said. He stated the Trades & Labor council does not favor jitneys, but asks for service and adequate accommodations.

The next speaker was Mr. Gilmore of the U. S. Worsted company, of North Chelmsford. He spoke particularly of an fare being charged from the city to the town and said the service to and from the mill is not sufficient to adequately care for the many people who use that line. He favored a 10-cent flat rate from North Chelmsford to Merrimack square, and said his company seriously is considering placing auto trucks in service to transport its help.

Mr. Cummings Represents Company
Trustee Fred Crowley introduced Fred A. Cummings, assistant to the chairman of the public trustees, to handle the case for the street railway. He opened by stating the trustees are just as much in favor of a waiting room as any individual in Lowell.

"Councilor Adams has stated the trustees have promised and promised a waiting room, but never have acted," said Mr. Cummings. "Let me now have made every attempt humanly possible to secure a location for a waiting room and have been assisted by a committee from your own body, but have been absolutely unable to find one."

"I wonder if we are not laboring under a delusion," he asked. "The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company is not a private corporation, it is a public utility, being operated as well as possible by a board of public trustees, appointed by the governor. We are your servants, on the job to give you the very best service that is economically possible."

Mr. Cummings covered many phases of the subject and went into the question of revenue and costs at some length.

Hope for the Future
He stressed the fact that the road has the utmost consideration for the great riding public and stated the trustees already have in mind a reduced rate of fare for Lowell.

"I am not promising a reduction in fare," he said, "but I do say the committee will act on this matter just the earliest moment possible."

Councilor Adams asked why the Fletcher street route was abandoned. "Because it didn't pay," replied Mr. Cummings.

Adventures of the Twins

OLD WITCH'S RUSE GOES WELL AT FIRST BUT—

THE STONE WALL APPEARED

It all happened just as the Sour Old Witch had said. You know she had given Light Fingers, the little fairy, a magic egg. If you break this egg in the road in front of the Twins, she said, "A stone wall instantly will appear in their path, so high and so wide the magic automobile will never get past it. Then you can shove the Twins out and take the automobile home to your maudlin."

And it had all happened just as the Sour Old Witch had said—that is, this much had happened, the stone wall appeared and the magic car had to stop or get wrecked.

Light Fingers, up in his tree-top (where he had hidden in order to throw down the egg at the proper time) laughed and laughed. He was so tickled about everything that he forgot about grabbing the car as the Sour Old Witch had said.

But somebody else was watching. The Green Wizard had seen everything. He had helped the Twins right along and he wasn't going to desert them now. So he thought and thought and thought.

Suddenly he slapped his knee. "I have it," he said so loudly his voice echoed and re-echoed over hills and forests and valleys like thunder.

Off he strode over his tree-tops and stepped down to the ground where a three-cornered door led into Browneland. He knocked three times and instantly a Brownie stuck up his head.

"May I see Mr. Jim Pim, the King of the Brownies?" asked the Green Wizard.

"Certainly, sir," said the Brownie.

Jim Pim appeared at once and the Green Wizard whispered something into his ear.

"My goodness! Is that so?" exclaimed the Brownie. "Of course I'll help you. I'll get Mike Mole at once and all his helpers. We'll get that wall down in a hurry."

And away he went.

You'll Get Rid of

Blackheads Sure

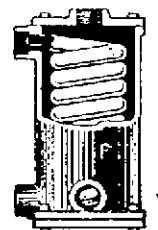

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this get two ounces of erio-nite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads, briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared.

Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The erio-nite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.—Adv.

TO the owners of gas storage water heaters:

=TACO=

WATER HEATER Use the heat you have already paid for.

TACO can be attached to any existing boiler. The TACO (shown above) is designed for steam or water systems. The Universal TACO, for hot water and boiler feedwater, is set in the fire pot itself.

TACO comes in different sizes to fit the requirements of any home. Price $20.00 and up, plus installation.

Write for booklet.

DURING the summer you enjoy plenty of hot water for washing and bathing. Turning the gas heater on and off is but slight trouble.

But in winter you are burning up unnecessary money if you pay gas bills for heating your domestic water when you can use heat you have already paid for—the fire of your heating boiler.

Let your heating boiler do double duty. This winter your Plumber or Heating Contractor can attach a TACO Water Heater to your boiler and connect it with your storage tank. The boiling water or steam from your heating boiler passes through TACO and heats the inner coil of domestic water.

Your storage tank is thus filled with an even temperature of hot water day and night. Once installed TACO requires no attention. And the money you save in gas bills will run your gas heater all summer!

Telephone the nearest Plumber or Heating Contractor today for an estimate. It costs you nothing to find out. And TACO, completely installed, costs you surprisingly little.

DEALERS: If you haven't TACO in stock, your jobber or the nearest branch office of the leading boiler and radiator manufacturers can supply you.

BIG CROWD WITNESSES MURDER IN LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE, Oct. 24.—Five years ago, according to Mike Khatshadourian, a knife was stolen from him by Oliver Lawrence. Today Khatshadourian is locked up in the local jail to answer to a charge of murdering Lawrence at North station yesterday morning by stabbing him in the neck with a knife and severing the jugular vein.

Lawrence is the father of Oliver Lawrence, a widely known local garage proprietor of the firm of Lawrence & Caswell. He was 65 years old. Khatshadourian is 46 years old and has lived in Lawrence for 19 years, coming here, he says, from Boston.

Lawrence was stabbed in view of a crowd of passengers waiting for trains. They saw the man's head almost slashed to bits by seven jabs before they could recover themselves sufficiently to chase Khatshadourian who ran from the station only to be caught by Traffic Officer Thomas McArdo.

Lawrence, the result of an autopsy by Assistant Medical Examiner Victor A. Reed showed, had one cut over each eye, one in the middle of his forehead, one back of the right ear, a long slash in the right cheek, the slash that severed the jugular vein and a cut that nearly severed the right thumb.

Khatshadourian told the police, in making a confession, that he had not intended to kill Lawrence, merely wishing to slash the man's nose off because Lawrence had insulted him and threatened to "get" him.

According to the story Khatshadourian said he had brooded over stolen a knife from him while the two were working at the Arlington mill five years ago as a result of which, he stated, Lawrence was discharged. The two came together again in the Pacific Print works some months ago and there, the alleged murderer says, Lawrence insulted him and told him he was out to "get" him. Khatshadourian said he had brooded over it and Lawrence had told about him and that he saw Lawrence going to North station yesterday morning. He followed him and asked him why he had told such stories.

Then Khatshadourian, says, he lost his head. The knife with which the stabbing was done was a razor sharp and had a blade fully six inches long. Lawrence lay on the station platform with blood pouring from his neck until the ambulance arrived, but died before he reached the hospital.

The murder attracted unusual attention here because of the crowd gathered where it occurred and because of the wide acquaintance of the dead man's sons. They are Oliver, Louis, Victor and Henry, all of Lawrence. The father had been employed in cupping wood in Lawrence, N. H., for the last five weeks and had come to the city for the week-end, being on his way back when the murder occurred.

FAVOR AMENDMENT ON CHILD LABOR

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—The senators and representatives of Massachusetts in congress have been requested by letter by the Massachusetts Child Labor committee to work and vote for an amendment to the constitution empowering congress to regulate child labor.

Copies of the letter have been sent also to Senator McCall McCormack, who introduced a resolution in that effect in congress, and to Senator Nelson, chairman of the committee on judiciary, to which it has been referred.

The letter states that the child labor committee has unanimously endorsed and will support senate joint resolution No. 232, giving Congress the right to limit or prohibit labor by persons under the age of 18, the new power sought for congress "to be additional to, and not a limitation of the powers elsewhere vested in congress by the constitution in respect to child labor."

The letter states that the nation must see that its children are not exploited by backward communities. It states that in Georgia children of 12 years may now work 10 hours a day and those of 14 and 6 months all night; that children of 14 may work 14 hours a day in North Carolina and those of 12 during school vacations, while "the laws of 26 other states fall below the standards of the federal laws, which have been declared unconstitutional."

The letter is signed by the directors of the committee, including Gratford D. Cushing, chairman; Frank LeVeroni, vice chairman; Charles F. Bradley, treasurer; Florence T. Perkins and others.

GIRL FOUND DRUGGED FOR FOURTH TIME

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—Miss Berenice Waldron, 19 years old, who was released yesterday from Psychopathic hospital, where she had been sent for observation after being found lying in the street under the influence of drugs, was found last night lying in the gutter opposite 135 Highland street, Roxbury, unconscious from the effect of drugs.

A man who was passing by notified the police and the girl was removed to the City hospital in the police ambulance. On the way to the hospital she revived. She gave her address as West 4th street, South Boston. The police said that this is fictitious.

CONDITIONS ARE BETTER Improvement in Business and Increased Employment, Survey Shows

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Improved business conditions and increased employment, with almost no idle men seeking work, now obtain in practically all sections of the United States, according to an official report yesterday by the department of labor. The conclusion is based upon telegraphic responses to a query sent out through the United States Employment service to every state, the agents of the service in thousands of districts indicating a universal shortage of common labor and a very general demand for skilled workmen in a wide variety of trades and occupations.

In Massachusetts, Connecticut and other New England states common labor shortage was said to be pronounced, and building trade workers fully employed. In Illinois the department found the industrial situation "better than it has been in the past two years," and in Michigan and Ohio similar improvement was noted.

The Farm Labor bureau of the employment service, covering general mid-western territory in its survey reported an existing demand for farm labor which exceeded the supply "with every indication that the situation will continue for some time."

WANT ONE-MAN CARS ORDERED OFF STREET

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—A request that the one-man cars of the Boston Elevated Railway company be ordered off the streets of Malden, on the ground that they cause traffic tie-ups, was made of the public utilities commission yesterday by a group of Malden citizens, including members of the city council and chamber of commerce.

City Council member Hoffman declared that if the fire department were called out on any of these frequent occasions when tie-ups result from the slowness with which these cars take on and discharge passengers, the fire engines would be unable to get through the jam at all.

All the cars to and from the Everett station, he pointed out, are one-man cars, despite the fact that Malden was supposed to get a real rapid transit system from the Elevated. These one-man cars, it was explained, are not the usual small type but full-sized cars, built for operation by two men.

Chairman Henry C. Atwill of the public utilities commission expressed some doubt as to the power of that body to order the Elevated trustees to replace these cars with regular two-man vehicles.

City Councilor Rowell of Malden then asked that the matter be taken up as a suggestion for general improvement in the street railway transportation for Greater Boston, which the department of public utilities has been asked by the legislature to study.

Fred R. Carlock of the Malden chamber of commerce described an accident resulting, he said, from the use of one-man cars, while Councilman Owen C. Trainor told of the trying delays at the Everett Terminal station, due to this type of car.

If Wm. Barnard, general counsel for the Elevated trustees, took the ground that the public utilities commission has no jurisdiction in this matter and remarked that two petitions to the commission on this subject have already been dismissed.

BILL TO JAIL THOSE WHO JOIN KLAN BOSTON, Oct. 24.—Matthew W. Bullock of Roxbury, one of the leading colored republicans of the city and a foremost athlete during his college days at Dartmouth, yesterday filed anti-Ku Klux Klan legislation with the Massachusetts house of representatives. It is the first bill filed for consideration of the 1923 general court.

Bullock was defeated for the house two years ago by a small margin. He is a candidate again this year. His bill is as follows:

The society or organization known as the Ku Klux Klan, so-called, is hereby declared a menace to the public peace. Whoever wilfully aids, encourages or in any way participates in organizing any society or order of the Ku Klux Klan, so-called, in this commonwealth, or whoever knowingly affiliates with or becomes a member of such society or organization, shall be punished by a fine of $500 or by imprisonment in a jail or house of correction for two years, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Mr. Bullock defended himself. At the trial, the verdict was returned April 24. He argued on the question of sentence, saying that at the trial no motive was shown and no crime had been committed by him. Punishment under the circumstances would be unjust as the case was prompted by malice, he asserted. He asked the judge to place the indictment on file.

WILL HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION HERE

Voting unanimously in favor of stronger movie censorship regulations and against any relaxation of the prohibition laws at the coming state election, Lowell union of the Christian Endeavor society, in monthly session at the First Baptist Congregational church last evening, wound up its meeting by declaring in favor of holding the next annual convention of the state "C.E." in this city.

The principal speaker last night was Dr. John H. McClelland of South Boston, whose topic was, "A Life Worth While." He called upon all church members to stand back of their pastors, Sunday school teachers and prayer meetings. He denounced "those people who would nullify good laws" referring to the Volstead and censorship acts. The speaker said these vitally concerned in letting down the bars were the ones who were afraid of the election results.

Dr. McClelland described the growth of the Christian Endeavor movement. Twenty-seven churches were represented at the meeting. Many Lowell delegates will attend the 27th annual state C.E. convention in Springfield, Oct. 26-29, it was announced.

Plans are now under way for a campaign to bring the convention of 1924 to Lowell. To impress the convention delegates at this week's Springfield, a large banner bearing the inscription, "Lowell 1924" was hung on a wall of the church auditorium last evening. The convention will see active campaigners present from Lowell and vicinity working to have the 1924 convention held here.

GIRLS' CITY CLUB

The Girls' City club will start a band and mandolin class tonight in the club rooms and all members interested should convene at 7:30 o'clock. A Halloween party will be conducted Friday night, which will be in the form of a welcome to new members. A delegation has been chosen from the local club to represent it at the Massachusetts League of Girls' clubs, which meets in Boston Saturday. The local club will produce a musical show on Nov. 17-18 at one of the local theaters. The name of this year's play will be "Kathleen" and it will include a cast which will produce a musical play. The play will go into the club's treasury to aid in carrying on the work of the organization.

PLAYS THAT REPRESENT AMERICAN LIFE

A plea for the need of plays that accurately represent American life of today was made before the Middlesex Women's club yesterday afternoon by Professor George P. Baker of Harvard university, speaking on the subject, "The Experimental Theatre."

It was a meeting arranged under the auspices of the literary department of which Miss Millicent A. Severance is chairman.

In making his plea for plays that truly depict life as we know it in America today, Professor Baker called attention to "The Old Homestead" and "Way Down East," and said neither represents the life of New England in the present century.

The speaker said our need is for plays that will do for America what Irish plays have done for Ireland, and pleaded for the disappearance of the familiar stage types.

"We need plays that will make clear our traditions to the foreigners in our midst and also we need plays that will include these strangers to our shores," said Professor Baker.

Rattlesnake farms, which supply live rattles to menageries and poison to scientists for experimental purposes, exist in the United States.

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES—No. 91.

Jack then went outside the store and ate his lunch. Shortly he walked to the outskirts of the little town until he came to an oak tree. The treasure is in this vicinity, said Jack to himself. Then he spied a tramp on the roadside watching him.

"What you going to do with the shovel, buddy," asked the tramp as he approached Jack. "Well," replied Jack, "I may as well tell the truth—I'm going to dig for a hidden treasure." This made the tramp laugh as he walked on his way.

"You can't fool me," shouted the tramp from a distance. "You're just going to dig worms to go fishing." Then Jack counted fifty paces from the oak tree and started to dig. It was hard work, as little Jack soon found out. Continued.

GIANTS INVITED TO TRAIN ON COAST

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—San Francisco has invited the world's champion New York Giants to train on the coast for the 1923 campaign. It was announced today, but Manager John McGraw has not yet decided to accept. The invitation came from the owners of the San Francisco Seals, of the Pacific Coast league.

The Giants trained last year at San Antonio. Some time ago, the club was asked by Harry H. Pearce, Los Angeles manager, to join the Red Sox in a transcontinental training trip, with Los Angeles as a goal, but no agreement was reached.

NINE TRAGEDIES STAND OUT IN NEWS OF AMERICA TODAY

All of Them Present Women in Leading Roles and Nearly All Involve the "Eternal Triangle" in Different Twists and Variations

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Nine tragedies stand out as dramatic spectacles in the news of America today, all of them presenting women in leading roles and nearly all involving the "eternal triangle" in different twists and variations.

Briefly, the nine cases now attracting attention, with their titles, are:

Kansas City: Marie E. (Philly) Deal, young divorcee, stepped out to freedom, acquitted last night after a short trial on a charge of murdering her lover, Frank Warren Anderson.

Los Angeles: Arthur C. Birch of Kensington, Ill., faces his third trial on a charge of killing J. Nelson Kennedy, in a conspiracy with Madeline O'Brien, who awaits her third trial on the same charge. Eight women and four men constitute the jury.

Los Angeles: The jury to try Mrs. Clara Phillips, accused of hearing Mrs. Albert Meadows to death with a hammer, was tentatively completed. Mrs. Meadows, a young widow, was alleged to have been friendly with Mrs. Phillips' husband.

Philadelphia: Mrs. Catherine Rosier, accused of killing her husband, Oscar Rosier, and his stenographer, Miss Milledge, is being held in jail.

Dead Geraldine Heckitt, faced trial for the murder of Miss Heckitt.

Hackensack, N. J.: George Cline, nation picture director; Alice Thorton and Charles Scullion, brother-in-law of Cline, were on joint trial for the murder of John Bergen, motion picture actor, because of an alleged attack on Mrs. Cline.

Cleveland: The trial of Mrs. Mabel Chapman, 22, alleged slayer of Thomas O'Connell, carnival promoter, was continuing before a jury, three of whom are women.

White Cloud, Mich.: Meda Hodell, on trial for killing her father-in-law, David Hodell, with poison, repudiated her previous confession to police, declaring the confession was obtained by threats of being hanged by the splits of her father-in-law and her husband, Romie Hodell.

New Brunswick, N. J.: State officials took over the task of attempting to solve the murder of Rev. Edward Hall and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

Fremont: George T. Harlow, acquitted by a coroner's jury, after he clubbed his wife to death, will be tried for manslaughter.

REV. FRANCIS J. MULLIN IS SERIOUSLY ILL

It was with the profoundest sympathy that the people of St. Michael's parish in particular, and of the entire city in general, learned of the serious illness of Rev. Francis J. Mullin, assistant pastor of St. Michael's church.

Rev. Fr. Mullin was removed to St. John's hospital, following a sudden illness, after the parish mass last Sunday. During the night his condition became so serious that the last rites of the church were administered by Rev. John J. Shaw, pastor of St. Michael's.

Although the nature of the reverend gentleman's illness is not definitely known, attending physicians believe that symptoms of pneumonia have developed, though the case has not been regarded as serious. Rev. Fr. Mullin celebrated the 5 and 11 o'clock masses in his church Sunday, and while he did not complain, the congregation at each of these masses noticed his apparent indisposition. He has been in failing health for some time past, due, no doubt, to the tense nervous strain occasioned by his tireless efforts in connection with the one great desire of his later life, the erection of a new and modern parochial school for his beloved St. Michael's.

Some time ago, at the suggestion of his physician, Fr. Mullin had his teeth extracted, and the same would alleviate his sufferings. For a while he seemed to have recovered his normal composure, so much so that the news of his sudden confinement to the hospital came as a great surprise to his many friends in this city.

His many friends are offering in St. Michael's church for his speedy recovery, while the children of St. Michael's school offered up their prayers for the respected clergyman who had done so much in their behalf. At the hospital it was reported that Fr. Mullin's condition remained about the same as that of yesterday and last night.

BRADY MURDER CASE SCHEDULED FOR TRIAL

City Solicitor Edward J. Tierney has received notice that the case of Mrs. M. Gertrude Brady, charged with killing her husband in a city hall corridor last month, will be called in superior criminal court at East Cambridge on Monday, Nov. 13. Mr. Tierney has been retained as her counsel.

This does not mean necessarily the case will go to trial on that day, although it is possible, inasmuch as that date has been set for it to be called.

Mrs. Ann Gilson, a Widow, Reputed to Have Witnessed Hall-Mills Murder

State Authorities Now Investigating Double Slaying to Question Her

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 24.—(By the Associated Press).—The name of the woman reputed to have witnessed the double murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, today became known. She is Mrs. Ann Gilson, a widow, who with her son, conducts a 50-acre farm on Hamilton Road, in a sparsely settled section several miles from here.

Since a hint of her story first was given, she was reported to have denied it in whole or part, but it was reported today that state authorities now, investigating the double shooting, would question her further.

The night of the murders, she was said to have been investigating, she was riding down De Brussy Lane, through the Phillips farm, when she saw in a field the dim outlines of two men and two women.

According to the story she was first reported to have told, she became curious, and followed the group, which was riding down De Brussy Lane, through the Phillips farm, when she saw in a field the dim outlines of two men and two women.

There was a moment of loud talking, the sound of a pistol shot, a streak of flame and one of the men fell. Then a moment later, four more shots and one of the women dropped.

The man and the woman stood over the slain couple, the story continues, and the name of the man was spoken.

In horror, by the woman.

Mrs. Gibson then was said to have become frightened and to have turned her back toward home.

Her story was today that the murders were committed by a man and a woman, who were eventually identified as Wilbur A. Mott, Newark lawyer and former Essex county prosecutor, who has been designated a special deputy attorney general, look over the reins of the inquiry, on behalf of the state.

Mott was today reported, relieved through intervention of Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker, after working ineffectually on the case for more than a month, expressed willingness to co-operate in every way with the newly appointed state official.

Paul Wilson Detained

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—Paul Wilson, Jr., a resident of Highland Park, a suburb of New Brunswick, is being held here today by the police, awaiting the arrival of his parents. He was picked up in a railroad station by special police in the belief that he may have some connection with the investigation of the Hall-Mills murder in New Brunswick. Police surgeons said he was suffering from extreme nervousness and the authorities do not attach any importance to the case. Wilson said police had been bounding.

FORFEITS CUP AND $3000

Capt. Morrissey Declares Challenger and Crew Have Already Won Two Races

Ignores Committee's Decision on Calling Saturday's Race "No Contest"

GLoucester, Oct. 24.—(By the Associated Press).—The Gloucesterman Henry Ford today definitely withdrew from the racing for the international fishing schooner championship of the North Atlantic. Captain Clayton Morrissey, asserting that his boat and his men had already won the two races from the Canadian champion, Bluebonnet, necessary for the possession of the title trophy, put pig iron ballast aboard preparatory to going fishing.

New Definitely Out of Race

By his act in putting ballast aboard, Capt. Morrissey, under the conditions of the deed of gift, automatically eliminated his vessel from the series. The deed of gift provision reads:

"No ballast shall be taken off or put on the competing vessels during the series." A further sentence provides that if any ballast is shifted there may be a re-employment, but committee members said this was no shifting it was an addition.

Capt. Geo. F. Peeples of Gloucester, chairman of the race sub-committee, asserting that the international committee itself had authority in the matter, added that it would seem to him that Morrissey was now definitely out of it.

Losses Cup and $3000

Captain Morrissey in this act of withdrawing relinquished claim not only to the cup but to at least $3000, and possibly $3000 of prize money. These sums, respectively, were the loser's and winner's shares.

"It has cost me my men enough already, so that the matter of a few thousand dollars does not count against the principal involved," Captain Morrissey said when questioned as to the probable disposition of the purse.

On the deck of the Henry Ford, while supervising the storage of the pig iron and rock ballast, Morrissey called race with his first cousin, Capt. Henry J. Larkin, skipper of the Mayflower. They had an agreement to meet after the series if Morrissey was the winner. The Ford's skipper said today that he wanted to go fishing as soon as possible, pointing to the docks on the dock and saying that he wanted to get them aboard and to work again, but that if Larkin insisted there might be a race with the Mayflower only.

Will Close Merrimack Square Theatre

The Merrimack Square theatre will close on Saturday of this week and probably will not re-open until in the neighborhood of Christmas. The enlargement and complete renovation of this motion picture house has made this necessary, although there was a time when it was thought possible that business might be carried on in spite of the construction work.

While on the subject, it is interesting to consider the transformation now under way in that section of the city just a stone's throw away from the square, bounded by Paige, French and Brookings streets. The new street railway loop will have a tendency to open up new business property there. It is believed and the new Merrimack Square theatre certainly will change the appearance of Paige street.

City Engineer Stephen Kearney said today that next year will see an extensive paving program carried out on the streets above mentioned and also an extension of the White Way lighting system through those streets. It is not difficult to visualize a complete change in the appearance of the district, making it part and parcel of the present retail section which it adjoins.

AGREES DRY AMERICAN SHIPS MEAN BIG LOSS

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Agreeing with Chairman Lankier of the United States shipping board, that dry American ships will mean a substantial loss, Oliver MacSwain, grand chief temple of Illinois, gave his own explanation of the loss in his address before the Grand Lodge of Illinois, International Order of Good Templars, at the opening of its 65th annual session here today.

It is persistently rumored that Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, who was foreign minister in Mr. Lloyd George's cabinet, is to be made a duke. This would be a most remarkable incident, as the dukedom is the highest rank in the British peerage, next only to the royal prince, and is an honor rarely conferred.

DOHERTY WILL BATTLE FOR PAY HELD UP

Harry P. Doherty, superintendent of streets, will not allow his back salary to go by default, he stated today. Not only will he "go after" the $323 that will be due him on Nov. 1 for the months of July, August, September and October, but he will seek interest at a 6 per cent rate.

He has left the matter in the hands of his attorney, Albert S. Howard, but feels his first attempt should be made through the claim committee of the city council.

"If that is blasted, then I will be forced to bring suit," said the superintendent. "Naturally, I am not going to let this money slip away, for I was legally retained, no matter what the mayor says to the contrary."

HEARINGS BY CITY COUNCIL

Petitioners for Better Fire Service in the Oaklands Are Heard

Agitation for Five Cent Car Fares and Waiting Room Downtown

The city council last night gave public hearings on two matters of vital importance to the public at large and of particular concern to residents of two residential sections.

The first hearing was relative to the establishment of a firehouse to better serve and protect the upper Belvidere, Oaklands and outer Rogers street districts. The second was on the proposed railway matters, principally a waiting room downtown and a fare reduction, with five cents as the goal.

Neither hearing was productive of immediate action and none could be expected, but both questions were thoroughly aired and discussed from many angles and any such agitation in general forum cannot fail to enhance the possibilities of success for each proposition advanced.

The firehouse hearing was called at the solicitation of petitioners representing the Oaklands Improvement Association and other residents of that general neighborhood, although, it is fair to say that the bulk of agitation has grown from within this sectional organization and a special committee therefrom has worked diligently in its favor. This committee is headed by George Stanley, 15 Oak, who conducted the case of the petitioners at the hearing. Several others spoke in favor, and as was expected, there were no remonstrators. Nearly 50, or perhaps more, residents of the locality involved.

CENTRAL AMERICAN CONFERENCE AT WASHINGTON, DEC. 4

Wide Possibilities Affecting Relations Between All Countries on the American Continents May Be Involved—May Prove Step Toward Formation of Pan-American Association of Nations

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. (By the Associated Press).—Wide possibilities affecting relations between all countries on the American continents may be involved in the Central American conference called to meet in Washington December 4 for the discussion, among other things, of a plan for limitation of armaments.

In Latin American circles here today, the opinion was expressed that the conference might prove a step toward the formation of a Pan-American association of nations.

It was pointed out that the agenda of the conference, as outlined in Secretary Hughes' invitation to the Central American powers, is of such scope as to permit discussion of any subject of mutual interest to the nations participating.

The Central American conference will deal only with land armament since none of the five countries invited has a navy.

All five of the Central American countries maintain their army very largely for internal purposes and the forces are not organized or equipped for foreign wars. It is this situation, which presents to Latin American diplomats here, the greatest hope of a definite limitation understanding.

As sponsor for the Central American conference, it is regarded as possible in some quarters that the United States may ultimately be asked to assume some liability in connection with any pact that might result, calculated to maintain peace.

GEN. SAWYER TO STAY BOY IS ELECTROCUTED

Pres. Harding Not to Comply With Legion's Request to Remove Him

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—President Harding is perfectly satisfied with the services of Brig. Gen. Charles E. Sawyer, it was said at the White House, and will not ask for his resignation as demanded by the American Legion in its national convention last week at New Orleans.

White House officials added, in discussing the subject, that the federal board of hospitalization, of which Gen. Sawyer is chairman, was a voluntary creation of the president and as such the president alone was responsible.

Swampscott Lad Dead as Result of Attempt to Set Up Wireless Outfit

SWAMPSCOTT, Oct. 24.—Twelve-year-old Richard Gerbach, son of Chas. M. Gerbach of this town, is dead as a result of his unsuccessful attempt to set up a wireless outfit, in trying to erect the apparatus between his home and that of young Norman C. Wilder, who was assisting, 2300 volts of electricity passed through his body, killing him instantly. His companion suffered burns on the face, hands and legs. An investigation showed that the boys had thrown a wire over a main feed wire of the electric light company.

SAY MARQUIS CURZON TO BE MADE A DUKE

LONDON, Oct. 24. (By the Associated Press).—The issuance of Mr. Lloyd George's honors list, which is expected tomorrow or Thursday, is awaited with great interest.

It is persistently rumored that Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, who was foreign minister in Mr. Lloyd George's cabinet, is to be made a duke. This would be a most remarkable incident, as the dukedom is the highest rank in the British peerage, next only to the royal prince, and is an honor rarely conferred.

Warned Not to Deliver Searles Lecture

LAWRENCE, Oct. 24.—Dr. John C. Bowker of this city, a former personal friend of Edward P. The letter said: "Do not repeat that lecture. It will be at your peril."

Boston Bank Teller Arrested

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—Willis E. Hutchinson of Watertown, a teller at the Exchange Trust Co., of Boston, was under arrest today, charged with larceny of $10,000 from the institution. BILLERICA SCHOOLS ARE CROWDED

The crowded conditions of the principal school buildings in the Billerica district are the subject of a long and bitter fight in the town. The town fathers and the school committee are at odds over the question of a new school building in the Billerica district. The town fathers insist that they are continually and rankly neglected by the town fathers and say they deserve a water supply as good as that given to other sections of the Billerica district. The new school—if it is used this winter as the school committee plans—will be a small building, but it will be a step in the right direction. cannot be up to date or adequate in any respect, with small schools scattered all around the town. The Shawshen movement is not for the best interests of the town's educational system as a whole. I know many Shawshen people who do not approve of the building of this new school at all, and who declare that they will continue to send their children to the center schools, even if they have to provide transportation themselves. Lowell manufacturers of elder guaranteed to be non-alcoholic are awaiting the decision of Judge Morton of the United States district court, who is now hearing the case of the Sterling Cider company of Sterling vs. the federal internal revenue division under indictment, promising a finding later. The Sterling Cider company's suit is a "test case" and has the backing of numerous lay state elder manufacturers including concerns in this city. All significant of the law suit and strongly supporting it. The Sterling company seeks to recover $248 alleged to have been collected from it as taxes on sweet cider under an internal revenue provision providing a 10 per cent. tax on soft drinks. Attorney William W. Armstrong of Rochester, N. Y., general counsel for the National Elder & Vinegar Manufacturers' association, says the test case, if sustained in this federal court, would result in a verdict of a million dollars in taxes similarly collected by the government all over the country. It is alleged by the plaintiffs that elder is not a soft drink any more than water, tea or coffee. Special counsel Charles T. Hendler for the revenue bureau, contends that elder is a soft drink and that taxes collected thereon are legally collected. His further contention, employing an objective case, was that if cold tea was put up in bottles and thus sold, it would be a soft drink. Judge Morton, taking the case under advisement yesterday, indicated that he would return a verdict in favor of the plaintiff company unless he disagrees in some major point with the findings of the circuit court for the second circuit in its recent decision that elder is not a soft drink.

And with no water supply provided for the school, as ordered by the town authorities when the contract for the building was awarded, there is no possibility of opening the new school on December 1, the time when the builders hope to complete the new structure. "The school situation in the Billerica district has rapidly been growing worse in regard to the housing of pupils, for the past five years or more. The increasing number of pupils from year to year, coupled with the conditions prevalent in the outlying districts, where like the Shawshen section, there has been a constant and energetic demand for district institutions for the lower grades children, has convinced the townspeople that something must be done next year to remedy some of the existing conditions, even though the increased cost will bear heavily on future tax payers.

The voters of the town are beginning to get a little weary with the Shawshen school situation. It is hard to find anyone praising the project at all, and a good many citizens of old Shawshen are saying, too, some saying they will not allow their children to go to that "two-room school" now being built there, but will insist upon the children being transported as they are now to the center schools.

Citizens in the center village say Shawshen voters "tried to put something over on the town—that all they really wanted down there in the Pinehurst section was a water supply service."

The proposition to extend the water supply to the Pinehurst or Shawshen district, has been a sore spot in town meeting affairs and public conversation, for a long time. The folks in Shawshen insist that they are continually and rankly neglected by the town fathers and say they deserve a water supply as good as that given to other sections of the Billerica district.

The new school—if it is used this winter as the school committee plans—will be a small building, but it will be a step in the right direction. How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

It is as good for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with lukewarm sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be moist, loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—Bennie Allen of Kansas City, Missouri, former champion pocket billiard player, arranged for practice here today in preparation for his challenge match with the titleholder, Ralph Greenleaf, which will begin Thursday and last three days. The match will be 45 points in blocks of 150 each night. The winner will receive a diamond medal and $2500 in cash. This is declared to be the largest prize in the history of pocket billiards, the previous record having been the $1200 greenleaf received when he won the title here.

Lowell manufacturers of elder guaranteed to be non-alcoholic are awaiting the decision of Judge Morton of the United States district court, who is now hearing the case of the Sterling Cider company of Sterling vs. the federal internal revenue division under indictment, promising a finding later. The Sterling Cider company's suit is a "test case" and has the backing of numerous lay state elder manufacturers including concerns in this city. All significant of the law suit and strongly supporting it. The Sterling company seeks to recover $248 alleged to have been collected from it as taxes on sweet cider under an internal revenue provision providing a 10 per cent. tax on soft drinks. Attorney William W. Armstrong of Rochester, N. Y., general counsel for the National Elder & Vinegar Manufacturers' association, says the test case, if sustained in this federal court, would result in a verdict of a million dollars in taxes similarly collected by the government all over the country. It is alleged by the plaintiffs that elder is not a soft drink any more than water, tea or coffee. Special counsel Charles T. Hendler for the revenue bureau, contends that elder is a soft drink and that taxes collected thereon are legally collected. His further contention, employing an objective case, was that if cold tea was put up in bottles and thus sold, it would be a soft drink. Judge Morton, taking the case under advisement yesterday, indicated that he would return a verdict in favor of the plaintiff company unless he disagrees in some major point with the findings of the circuit court for the second circuit in its recent decision that elder is not a soft drink.

Following the custom of previous years, the following theses, to be thoroughly investigated by the members of the graduating class of the Lowell Textile school, have been assigned: Andrew B. Barrett—"The Mechanism of the Sulphur Dyeing." Arthur Cohen—"Possibilities of Preparing Sulphur Red." Robert K. Houghton—"Carbonizing With Metallic Chlorides." Jakob Hurwitz—"Relation of Temperature of Absorption to Constitution of Acid Dyes." Sven E. Laurin—"Determination of Dyes with Aid of the Photo Microscope." Barney H. Perlmutter—"Possibilities of Preparing Sulphur Red." Lawrence W. Ryan—"Tangsten and Its Application to Textiles." Chen Wang—"The Black Dyeing of Silk." Earl Wilmut—"The Processing of Narrow Fabrics." The Woman Behind Kemal

By HILTON BRONNER
N. E. A. Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Oct. 24.—The woman behind Kemal.

That's what they call Halide Edib Hanoum, one of the first Turkish women of all time to make her mark in history.

She is said to be the person who has inspired Kemal Mustafa with his grandiose dream of a revived Turkey astraddle of the straits of Bosphorus, with one foot in Europe and the other in Asia. It is she who is supposed to be constantly whispering in his ears the battle cry—"Turkey—All Turkey—for the Turks!"

Romantic legend is already busy with her story and it is already hard to sift fact from fiction. It is known that she is the daughter of a Turk who was an official at the Vilayet of Kios, the home of the sultans at Constantinople. It is known that she was one of the first real Turkish women to be graduated from the American college at Constantinople.

She has absorbed both Turkish and European cultures.

Highly cultured.

She is quoted as saying:

"In the most approved Turkish housewife fashion, I can go to a market and pick out a female slave for the household and know the exact price to pay for her. And I can go to a European butcher shop like any European woman and select the proper joint of beef or mutton."

"As a Turk I can select a dancing girl and know what her services are worth. As a European, I can assume European dress, play tennis, dance in the western fashion, play the piano, sing the latest London and Paris successes and hold fluent conversations in French, Italian and English."

When very young—she is only 32 now—she married a Turkish journalist.

"That's why housekeepers are so delighted to find in Sylpho-Nathol an effective preparation that hasn't one of these objections."

"Sylpho-Nathol destroys germs—they can't live where it is used, because it is 3 1/2 times stronger than carbolic acid. Yet Sylpho-Nathol is as safe to have in the house as a cake of scum soap. It cannot hurt your skin nor injure household things."

Sylpho-Nathol banishes bad odors for good. The objectionable smells which develop so rapidly in the best cared for homes quickly disappear when it is used. But Sylpho-Nathol's own pleasant, friendly odor doesn't linger.

Sylpho-Nathol is easy to use. A teaspoonful in a quart of warm water makes a clean-smelling, pearly-grey solution that's ready for immediate use.

Sylpho-Nathol is a year-through, every-day necessity. In mop-water it destroys the germs that get into floor cracks and corners and can't be budged by ordinary methods. It is indispensable for keeping garbage cans clean and sweet and free from unpleasant odors and disease-carrying flies.

Sylpho-Nathol is an important sanitary measure in the bathroom, for cleaning around the fixtures and as a flush for the toilet bowl. When sprinkled in cellar corners, it is a sure preventive of damp, musty cellar smells.

Sylpho-Nathol is also a splendid antiseptic which should be in the medicine chest ready for cuts, burns, bruises, sprains and other home accidents, which require prompt, first-aid treatment.

Sylpho-Nathol comes in four handy sizes, 15c, 35c, 65c, $1.25. Most good grocers and druggists have it. If yours hasn't, he can get it easily. Just ask for it by the name—"Sylpho-Nathol."

and they have several children. During the war she was a friend and confidant of the all-powerful Turkish triumvirate—Enver, Talaat and Djemal. And it is at this point that romantic legend steps in.

There are three separate yarns about how she happened to join the Ankara forces.

Legend No. One—For her connection with the anti-Armenian activities of Djemal Pasha, she was exiled by the allies to the Isle of Malta whence she escaped to Ankara.

Legend No. Two—The Turkish government at Constantinople, suspecting her sympathy with the nationalists under Kemal, was preparing to arrest her for treason. But she struck up an acquaintance with a Jewish operator, who was also a nationalist and one day morning she sailed away aboard the white shining minaret of the Turkish capital and landed safely in Asia Minor.

Legend No. Three—The allies wanted to keep her in Constantinople, but one night she was ferried across the Bosphorus to the Asiatic shore, where she was met by nationalists who piloted her past the English lines and to safety.

In Kemal's Cabinet
She soon played a leading role at Kemal's capital. As a Turkish woman who had discarded the Turkish veil and urged other Turkish women to do so, she was the author of a novel which attacked many of the evils of the old system, as one who nursed wounded Turks in spite of Mohammedan teachings, she captured the fancy of the women and taught them to read and write.

She became the champion of the new woman movement in Islam, saying: "Without emancipated women, Turkey will never become civilized." Recognizing her powers, Kemal broke all records by making her minister of education in his first cabinet. As a cabinet minister she has gone far beyond supervising education. She has been the most trusted of Kemal's advisers.

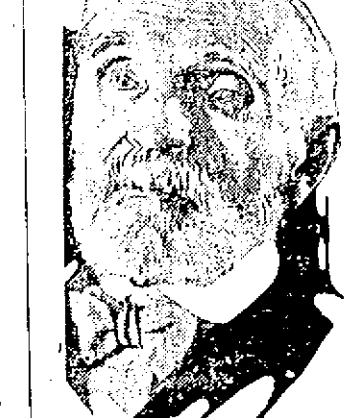

DEATH OF FORMER LOWELL MAN

Word reached Lowell today of the death last Friday in East Rochester, N. H., of James H. Nixon, former well known resident of this city, who left Lowell for Rochester about 20 years ago. A sister, Margaret C. Nixon, still makes her residence here, while a wife, four sons and a daughter mourn his loss in Rochester.

At the time of his death Mr. Nixon was 75 years of age and had been in failing health for some time. Later he underwent a surgical operation from which he failed to recover. In his early days he was a member of the East Rochester baseball team and at one time manager of the nine. He became interested in politics and only at the Republican primaries, he had been honored by the democratic party as their candidate for representative.

The funeral took place last Monday morning, a requiem mass being sung at St. Mary's church in East Rochester. The bearers were Dr. John H. Bates, Dr. C. Farrell, John McInerney, Frank Callahan, John Hartigan, and David Lacy.

FLIMMERS IN RADIO FOR FARMERS

By N. E. A. Service.
CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Farmers with flimmer radios are holding out for the flimmer radio set.

Mail order houses here have learned this salient fact after offering present radio models to their rural customers. They have included all the latest features in their long list of commodities for farmers. But, their managers say, sale of this apparatus is like the sale of automobiles before the "flimmer" became popular.

What is wanted, they say, is a cheap and simple, yet highly practical, radio receiving set. Less controls, less bother, lower maintenance cost and some of the features they point out as necessary before the radio receiving set will become as popular as the cheap automobile.

The farmer, these men declare, will be the one on whom the future of radio will depend. In comparison to the time when the "flimmer radio" will be common, he is almost isolated from the more populous sections of the country. Few, comparatively, have the telephone and even the electric light in their homes. The automobile and the tractor play a more important part in their lives.

The radio will be just as necessary, say the mail order men. Latest market and weather reports, coming by radio, will make this science an essential part of the agricultural industry. But, it is pointed out, farmers cannot afford to maintain a set that may become obsolete within a few years.

For this reason they are waiting for a standard, cheap, simple and practical set, comparable to the automobile that may be seen on almost every farm.

Steps toward the perfection of such radio receiving sets have already been made. The apparatus with the single control is already in the process of perfection. The aerial is being eliminated and there will be no need for ground connection.

One other important improvement to be made before radio can be said to have been perfected is that centering about the use of the storage batteries. These sources of power need recharging at intervals, which means taking them to a battery charging station for the purpose. Since the farmer is far from such stations, it is an argument against his adoption of any apparatus.

If the farmer happens to have an electric lighting system in his home, he may be able to recharge the batteries by means of one of the many forms of home charging outfit now on the market. But many farm homes remain without electricity and therefore could not make use of such an outfit. There is, therefore, little chance to sell a radio set with batteries to many of the farmers of the country.

RADIO FINDS USE FOR CORKSCREW
Don't throw away your old corkscrew and whiskey bottle. If you have a radio set, you can use the corkscrew as a part of the set. The bottle contains a new element in the form of radio detector, and the corkscrew with a wire around it acts as antenna.

FINGERPRINTS BY RADIO
Police of Copenhagen are experimenting with the transmission of fingerprints by wireless. Under such system identification of a suspect could be made possible within an hour or two after his arrest.

CORNS
Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an itching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with Angers. Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every corn, soft corn, corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Hearings by City Council

were present to lend the petition their moral support.

Not only will the matter be gone over in committee and in conference with the chief of the fire department, but the city collector will be asked to ascertain the price per foot of available lots of land on Belvidere hillside in the neighborhood of Oakland square.

The street railway hearing was brought about by the introduction of an order by Councilman Smith J. Adams, who led the investigation forces. He presented several witnesses and spoke at length on the matter himself. The street railway company was represented by Trustees Fred Crowley and Fred A. Cummings, assistant to the chairman of the board. District Manager Maurice McCormick, Sept. Chas. E. Whelan and retiring manager, Thos. Leas, also attended.

Fare Reduction Possible
There was a lot of discussion and from it all there stood out the statement of Mr. Cummings that Lowell may get a fare reduction at a not too distant date. He did not make any definite statement, but he did say that he might occur, but he left the impression that one may be anticipated, without placing one's hopes on too lofty a plane.

When the meeting was called at 8:20 o'clock, Councilors Appleton and Christen were absent.

Firehouse Question First

The Oakland petition was taken up first and President Hagley read the request for hearing.

Arthur C. Spalding, president of the Oakland Improvement association, opened for the petitioners. He said that a petition for a firehouse dates back at least eight years and felt the present is ripe time for some action.

We are not asking for undue favors," said Mr. Spalding, "but only for what we think we are entitled to." Judge Quia, who chairs the city's special committee of the Oakland Improvement association, then began to discuss the question from the standpoint of the petitioners.

He spoke of several disastrous fires two or three years ago in the Highlands section of the city and the subsequent action on the part of the city in building a new fire house for that locality.

"We of the Oakland," continued Judge Quia, "now feel we are entitled to similar consideration, even though we have not been visited by very many serious fires."

He called attention to the fact that residents of Belvidere hill, the Oakland, Boylston street and outer Rogers street have signed the petition.

"We are not here to advocate any particular site for the proposed fire house," said the speaker, "but there seem to be places available in or very near Oakland square."

Oakland Square Location
In quoted from a recent report of the fire underwriters. In which Oakland square is named as a site for a new fire house, the report also bears the approval of the state fire marshal and the fire prevention committee of the chamber of commerce.

Judge Quia also quoted Fire Chief Saunders as favoring a fire house in the locality in question, equipped with a triple-combining steam pump.

The speaker stated that the proposal need not necessitate any great expense. He said land is available for 5 and 7 cents a foot.

"The residents of this part of the city are very earnest in this matter," said Judge Quia. "They feel they have been wronged and have petitioned only for something they are entitled to receive. It is a matter of simple protection," he said in conclusion.

Col. Charles A. Proctor, a resident of the Oakland for 30 years, spoke briefly stressing the building activity now going on there.

Bartholomew Scannell was another speaker, who favored the petition.

Lawyer Joseph A. Guillet was called on. He has been an Oakland resident for 22 years. He was heartily in favor of the petition.

Another speaker was Frank P. Kenney who at present is building a house on Butman road. He wants adequate protection against fire.

Mr. Donahue in Favor
Atty. Daniel J. Donahue said he has experienced fire in his own residence on Fairmount street. "It was the longest ten minutes I ever spent, waiting for the fire department to come," he said. "That fire did $2000 worth of damage in less than 15 minutes and yet the firemen got there as soon as they could and did fine work after they arrived. The firehouse was too far away."

"You have given us fine taxes to pay, now give us adequate fire protection," said Mr. Donahue.

Mark Adams was the next speaker and he was followed by Jackson Palmer, who favored a firehouse but to be located on the crest of Belvidere hill. He spoke of lack of water pressure.

All in favor of the petition expressed their attitude by rising and on motion of Councilman McInerney the petition was referred to the council committee on public safety and the chief of the fire department, with instructions to report back to the council at the next meeting.

In addition, Councilor Gallagher moved the city collector be asked to inquire as to cost of land available in the Oakland and Belvidere hill districts.

Street Railway Hearing
The street railway matter was opened by Councilor Smith J. Adams, sponsor of the hearing.

He stated the city is entitled to adequate shelter in a waiting room.

"We have agitated this matter for a long time and all we have received are promises," said the councilor.

John S. Stratton was the first speaker in favor of the proposition. He seemed to favor allowing jitneys to operate in the city, basing his contention on the old axiom that competition is the spice of trade.

Labor Favors Reduced Fare
Parkor Murphy spoke in favor of a waiting room. He represented the Lowell Trades & Labor council. He spoke against the $1 ticket now being sold by the Eastern Massachusetts. Many working people cannot afford to pay this dollar, he said. He stated the Trades & Labor council does not favor jitneys, but asks for service and adequate accommodations.

The next speaker was Mr. Gilmore of the U. S. Worsted company, of North Chelmsford. He spoke particularly of the fare being charged by the city to the town and said the service to and from the mill is not sufficient to adequately care for the many people who use that line. He favored a 10-cent flat rate from North Chelmsford to Merrimack square, and said his company seriously is considering placing jitneys in service to transport its help.

Mr. Cummings Represents Company
Trustee Fred Crowley introduced Fred A. Cummings, assistant to the chairman of the public trustees, to handle the case for the road.

He opened by stating the trustees are just as much in favor of a waiting room as any individual in Lowell.

"Councilor Adams has stated the trustees have promised and promised a waiting room but never have acted," said Mr. Cummings. "Let me say we have made every attempt humanly possible to secure a location for a waiting room and have been assisted by a committee from your own body, but have been absolutely unable to find one."

"I wonder if we are not laboring under a delusion?" he asked.

"The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company is not a private corporation, it is a public utility, being operated as well as possible by a board of public trustees, appointed by the governor. We are your servants, on the job to give you the very best service that can be economically possible."

Mr. Cummings covered many phases of the subject and went into the question of revenue and costs at some length.

Hope For The Future
He stressed the fact that the road has the utmost consideration for the great riding public and stated the trustees already have in mind a reduced rate of fare for Lowell.

"I am not promising a reduction in fare," he said, "but I do say the company will act on this matter just the earliest moment possible."

Councilor Adams asked why the Fletcher street route was abandoned.

"Because it didn't pay," replied Mr. Cummings.

"We do not need a branding iron to put us into action; we will bear the most continued street railway war in it in agitating a reduction," said Mr. Cummings.

Favor 50-Cent Ticket
Pres. Hagley asked if it would not be possible to return the tickets of eight riders to 50 cents.

Mr. Cummings said he would not say it is not a possibility, but stated also the company found a loss of revenue when this type of ticket was being used.

"When does your company propose to install a waiting room downtown?" asked Councilor Adams.

We solicit your most enthusiastic co-operation, that is the only reply I am able to give," said Mr. Cummings.

Councilor Adams said he would find a waiting room provided the company moves its offices to a ground floor location.

Councilor Gallagher asked if there would be any objection to having car operators divide the present dollar tickets and sell each half for 50 cents.

Mr. Cummings suggested this matter be taken up with the local division manager.

Public Ownership Hinted
"We are going to get service," declared Councilor Adams, "and if the public trustees don't give it to us, perhaps public ownership will be the answer."

"Would you be surprised to know I favor this public ownership of which you speak?" asked Mr. Cummings.

"I had to hear it," replied the councilor.

The hearing was declared closed at this point.

Uniforms Pensioned
A few matters of routine business followed, including a vote to retire on a pension of $1200 a year, Michael J. Duran, police department electrician.

The council also voted a supplementary budget for the year ending December 31, 1922, in the amount of $100,000, in the order as introduced by the mayor. It calls for the payment of all October, November and December payrolls and bills from general cash, said fund to be reimbursed from anticipated revenue and departmental receipts.

Adventures of the Twins

OLD WITCH'S RUSE GOES WELL AT FIRST BUT—

THE STONE WALL APPEARED

It all happened just as the Sour Old Witch had said. You know she had given Light Fingers, the bad little fairy, a magic egg. "If you break this egg in the road in front of the twins," she said, "a stone wall instantly will appear in their path, so high and so wide the magic automobile will never get past it. Then you can shove the twins out and take the automobile home to your master."

And it had all happened just as the Sour Old Witch had said—that is, this much had happened, the stone wall appeared and the magic car had to stop or get wrecked.

Light Fingers, up in his tree-top (where he had hidden in order to throw down the egg at the proper time) laughed and laughed. He was so tickled about everything that he forgot about grabbing the car as the Sour Old Witch had said. But somebody else was watching. The Green Wizard had seen everything. He had helped the twins right along and he wasn't going to desert them now. So he thought and thought and thought.

Suddenly he slapped his knee. "I have it," he said so loudly his voice echoed and re-echoed over hills and forests and valleys like thunder.

Off he strode over his tree-tops and stepped down to the ground where a three-cornered door led into Brownland. He knocked three times and instantly a Brownie stuck up his head.

"May I see Mr. Pim Pim, the King of the Brownies?" asked the Green Wizard.

"Certainly, sir," said the Brownie.

Pim Pim appeared at once and the Green Wizard whispered something into his ear.

"My goodness! Is that so?" exclaimed the Brownie. "Of course I'll help you. I'll get Mike Mole at once and all his helpers. We'll get that wall down in a hurry."

And away he went. (To Be Continued)

BIG CROWD WITNESSES MURDER IN LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE, Oct. 24.—Five years ago, according to Mike Khatsadorian, a knife was stolen from him by Oliver Lawrence. Today Khatsadorian is locked up in the local jail to answer to a charge of murdering Lawrence at North station yesterday morning by stabbing him in the neck with a knife and severing the jugular vein.

Lawrence is the father of Oliver Lawrence, a widely known local garage proprietor of the firm of Lawrence & Caswell. He was 56 years old. Khatsadorian is 46 years old and has lived in Lawrence for 19 years, coming here, he says, from Boston.

Lawrence was stabbed in view of a crowd of passengers waiting for trains. The man's head almost struck to bits by seven blows before they could recover themselves sufficiently to chase Khatsadorian, who ran from the station only to be caught by Traffic Officer Thomas McArthur.

Lawrence, the result of an autopsy by Assistant Medical Examiner Victor A. Hood showed, had one cut over each eye, one in the middle of his forehead, one back of the right ear, a long slash in the right cheek, the slash that severed the jugular vein and a cut that nearly severed the right thumb.

Khatsadorian told the police, in making a confession, that he had not intended to kill Lawrence, merely wishing to slash the man's nose off because Lawrence had insulted him and threatened to "get" him.

According to the story Khatsadorian said he had brooded over stolen a knife from him while the two were working at the Arlington mill five years ago as a result of which, he stated, Lawrence was discharged. The two came together again in the Pacific Street work some months ago and there, the alleged murderer says, Lawrence insulted him and told him he was "out to get" him. Khatsadorian said he had brooded over stories Lawrence had told about him and that when he saw Lawrence going to North station yesterday morning he followed him and asked him why he had told such stories.

Then Khatsadorian, says, he lost his head.

The knife with which the stabbing was done was razor sharp and had a blade about 10 inches long. Lawrence lay on the station platform with blood pouring from his neck until the ambulance arrived, but died before he reached the hospital.

The murder attracted unusual attention here because of the crowd gathered when it occurred and because of the wide acquaintance of the dead man's sons. They are Oliver, Louis, Victor and Henry, all of Lawrence. The father had been employed in chopping wood at Hampstead, N. H., for the last five weeks and had come to the city for a week or two on his way back when the murder occurred.

FAVOR AMENDMENT ON CHILD LABOR

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—The senators and representatives of Massachusetts in congress have been requested by letter by the Mass. Child Labor committee to work and vote for an amendment to the constitution empowering congress to regulate child labor.

Copies of the letter have been sent also to Senator Merrill McCormick, who introduced a resolution to that effect in congress, and to Senator Nelson, chairman of the committee on industry, to which it has been referred.

The letter states that the child labor committee has unanimously endorsed and will support senate joint resolution No. 232, giving congress the right to limit or prohibit employment of persons under the age of 18, the new power sought for congress "to be additional, to and not a limitation of the powers elsewhere vested in congress by the constitution in respect to child labor."

The letter states that the nation must see that its children are not exploited by backward communities. It states that in Georgia children of 12 years may now work 10 hours a day and those of 14 and 6 months all night; that children of 14 may work 11 hours a day in North Carolina and the majority of 12 during school vacations, while "the laws of 26 other states fall below the standards of the federal laws, which have been declared unconstitutional."

The letter is signed by the directors of the committee, including Gratton D. Cushing, chairman; Frank Leverett, vice chairman; Charles F. Bradley, treasurer; Florence T. Perkins and others.

A nun who was passing by notified the police and the girl was moved to the City hospital in the police ambulance. On the way to the hospital she revived. She gave her address as West 4th street, South Boston. The police say that this is fictitious.

Miss Waldron, who is always well dressed, has been found on four occasions during the past two weeks lying unconscious as the result of use of drugs. She was sent to the Psychopathic hospital for observation regarding her sanity, and when released yesterday the doctors said they did not want to see her again.

Improvement in Business and Increased Employment, Survey Shows

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Improved business conditions and increased employment, with almost no idle men seeking work, now obtain in practically all sections of the United States, according to an official report yesterday by the department of labor. The conclusion is based upon telegraphic responses to a query sent out through the United States employment service to every state, the agents of the service in their answers indicating an almost universal shortage of labor. The conclusion is based upon telegraphic responses to a query sent out through the United States employment service to every state, the agents of the service in their answers indicating an almost universal shortage of labor.

The survey shows that in many industries there is a demand for skilled workmen in a wide variety of trades and occupations.

In Massachusetts, Connecticut and other New England states common labor shortage was said to be pronounced, and building trades workers fully employed. In Illinois the department found the industrial situation "better than it has been in the past two years" and in Michigan and Ohio similar improvement was noted.

The Farm Labor bureau of the employment service, covering "general mid-western territory in its survey reported an existing demand for farm labor which exceeded the supply "with every indication that the situation will continue for some time."

BILL TO JAIL THOSE WHO JOIN KLAN

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—Matthew W. Ballou, one of the leading colored republicans of the city and a foremost athlete during his college days at Dartmouth, yesterday filed with the Massachusetts house of representatives a bill for the consideration of the 1923 general court. Mr. Ballou, who is a member of the house two years ago by a small margin, is a candidate again this year. His bill is as follows:

"The society or organization known as the Ku Klux Klan, so-called, is hereby declared a menace to the public peace, order and safety, and encourages or in any way participates in the Ku Klux Klan, so-called, in this commonwealth, or whoever knowingly joins, affiliates with or becomes a member of such society or organization, shall be punished by a fine of $500 or by imprisonment in a jail or house of correction for two years, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

It was a meeting arranged under the auspices of the literary department, of which Miss Millie A. Severance is chairman.

In making his plea for plays that truly depict life as we know it in America today, Professor Baker called attention to "The Old Homestead" and "Way Down East," and said neither represents the life of New England in the present century.

The speaker said our need is for plays that will do for America what Irish plays have done for Ireland, and pleaded for the disappearance of the (similar stage types).

"We need plays that will make clear our traditions to the foreigners in our midst and also we need plays that will include these strangers to our shores," said Professor Baker.

PLAYS THAT REPRESENT AMERICAN LIFE

A plea for the need of plays that accurately represent American life of today was made before the Middlesex Women's club yesterday afternoon by Professor George P. Baker of Harvard university, speaking on the subject, "The Experimental Theatre."

It was a meeting arranged under the auspices of the literary department, of which Miss Millie A. Severance is chairman.

TO the owners of gas storage water heaters:

DURING the summer you enjoy plenty of hot water for washing and bathing. Turning the gas heater on and off is but slight trouble.

But in winter you are burning up unnecessary money if you pay gas bills for heating your domestic water when you can use heat you have already paid for—the fire of your heating boiler.

Let your heating boiler do double duty. This winter your Plumber or Heating Contractor can attach a TACO Water Heater to your boiler and connect it with your storage tank. The boiling water or steam from your heating boiler passes through TACO and heats the inner coil of domestic water.

Your storage tank is thus filled with an even temperature of hot water day and night. Once installed TACO requires no attention. And the money you save in gas bills will run your gas heater all summer!

Telephone the nearest Plumber or Heating Contractor today for an estimate. It costs you nothing to find out. And TACO, completely installed, costs you surprisingly little.

DEALERS: If you haven't TACO in stock, your jobber or the nearest branch office of the leading boiler and radiator manufacturers can supply you.

THE STATE BALLOT

There has been so much talk about the initiative and referendum that most people should be acquainted with these two principles of legislation. It will be remembered that an amendment to the state constitution was favored by the constitutional convention, passed by the legislature and adopted later by the people at a regular election.

Under that provision the final decision as to the adoption of any statute may rest with the people through an expression of their will by vote at the polls. When the legislature enacts a law, then on petition of a certain large number of voters, it may be submitted for approval or rejection to the voters at any regular or special election.

In the coming election there will be six measures on the ballot that will call for the exercise of careful judgment on the part of the voters. The first is for an amendment to the constitution relative to roll calls in the General Court, so far as can be seen, there will be little opposition to its adoption. The proposed change has been found necessary but without an amendment of the constitution it could not be legally adopted. The next question has to do with the legal status of voluntary associations of five or more persons. The question is whether such associations may sue or be sued in their common names, whether their officers shall be responsible or whether the association shall be exempt from attachment or execution in any such suit. This is a legal question that requires careful study. It is strongly opposed by labor organizations and is as strongly favored by some corporate bodies. It is a question of law and justice which the people must decide. The third question on the ballot submits to the people for their combined judgment a measure enacted by the legislature for the censorship of moving pictures. In opposition to this measure it is charged that the adoption of any such bill would be a violation of the rights of publicity under which people are free to publish what they please provided they violate no law. Moving picture producers feel that their business would come under that provision of law and they also assert that censorship for pictures would increase the price of such shows and therefore make it more expensive to the people to see these exhibitions. That is true and besides, the present law, if enforced, will prevent the presentation of all immoral or indecent shows.

The fourth measure on which the voters are to pass is an act providing for the enforcement of the prohibition laws, defining the offenses and fixing penalties. Massachusetts favors law and order as do all good citizens, and adoption of this law will place her in full accord as she should be, with the federal government on the enforcement of the 18th amendment.

The fifth question asks whether the district attorney of any county in the commonwealth shall be a member of the bar. There should be no difficulty in deciding this. It has always been a custom, although there was no written law so specifying, that the district attorney should be a lawyer. Such a law is needed and should be adopted.

Each of the preceding referenda is submitted to the people all over the state and will become law unless defeated at the polls on election day. But the final question on the local ballot has reference to Lowell only. It asks whether we shall adopt the Plan B form of charter instead of the one now in force. This matter has attracted considerable attention during the last few weeks as it has been made the subject of mandamus proceedings before the courts. Plan B differs but slightly from the charter under which we live at present, but one of its provisions is that every city adopting it cannot seek another change in less than four years. This is a matter upon which each voter should decide according to his or her best judgment.

The ballot upon which the referendum appeared was published in Saturday's Sun and the voters should get a copy of it and study therein not only these various legislative questions submitted for the decision of the people, but also the list of candidates. This ballot has been published for the information of the voters and a careful study of its various features and of the candidates for the different offices will greatly facilitate the matter of voting right on election day.

THE FIRE MENACE

"When your neighbor's house is on fire take care of your own," is an old and a wise maxim. The account of the rapidity with which the flames spread in that crowded New York block early Sunday morning, and the frightful fatalities, should cause those in charge of tenement property everywhere to guard against such holocausts. From all the indications the fire was of incendiary origin, starting, as supposed, from a baby carriage left standing in an entryway. The flames, according to all accounts, spread with amazing rapidity so that many of the occupants of the block were suffocated or burned in their beds. In spite of the fact that many were rescued, the fatalities numbered fifteen, mostly children.

The question that suggests itself to Lowell people is, could a fire of that kind occur in this city? Anybody who knows the conditions on Elm street, Lewis street, and perhaps half a dozen other streets of our city, can realize how readily such a fire might occur and make equal headway here. We have been particularly fortunate in escaping fatal fires in this city, due mainly to the efficiency of our fire department; but it must never be forgotten that the dangers are ever present and that nothing but continual vigilance and a fire department ever ready to make all possible speed to the scene can avert such catastrophes as that which shocked New York on Sunday morning.

In regard to incendiarism and the danger of having half-witted people at large, it is necessary to keep a close watch on such people and put them where they can do no harm just as soon as they begin to show erratic tendencies.

On the fire department devolves the duty of compelling property owners to remove all inflammable matter so far as possible from cellars, closets and entryways. Some people seem to forget that the city removes all the rubbish if set out once a week. If, instead, it be allowed to accumulate in cellars or closets, it becomes a menace to the safety of the neighborhood as offering food for the flames if the merest spark be applied.

YOUTH'S SUICIDE

There is no accounting for tastes. Neither is there any accounting for the actions of men, young or old, when under the spell of women. Here is a young man, a resident of Boston, occupying a respectable position. He takes a day or two off, goes to New York, as reports have it, to see a sweetheart of his boyhood days. Whether he met with a disappointment in finding that she had forgotten him, if she ever cared for him, and gave her affections to another, or learned of something that made the world seem dark to him, is not clear; but anyhow, he returned to Boston took a car to one of the bridges over the Mystic river, got off and jumped into the water, a suicide.

Poor deluded youth. He little thought that any one of 10,000 girls, better, perhaps, than the one to whom he was attached, would gladly have cast her lot with him. He lacked the vision to see this or the narrow to go out and find a partner for life better than the one who rejected him. With a little more experience, he would have learned that the average girl has no compunction whatever in rejecting the suit of a young man whereas, she will take on fearfully if she is jilted by a man on whom she thought she had made a claim.

The young man who commits suicide for any such reason proves that he lacks common sense and courage. He who commits suicide leaves to the world an open confession either of guilt or of cowardice. Moreover, he proves that his sense of moral responsibility for his own life was either very obtuse or else that it was not strong enough to restrain him from ending his life in a fit of despondency.

MORE TELEPHONES

Word comes from the headquarters of the New England Telephone & Telegraph company that officials are pushing construction work on an extensive scale this fall in an effort to overtake the demand for telephone service. The company is making some progress in this direction, but to do so it has had to increase its expenditures for gross new construction some 60 per cent over those of a year ago. In 1921 this company spent $15,000,000 for construction, and the outlay for the same purpose this year is likely to run up to $22,000,000. In other words the New England company will have spent some $38,000,000 in two years on new construction.

This shows a commendable energy on the part of the company officials and even the workers lower down the ladder, who appear to be hustling along without a let-up to improve the telephone service and extend the lines and branches into territories never previously served. The continued prosperous condition of this great corporation with its many connections, shows which way the business winds are blowing in these October days. The future has no terrors for the "phone" men.

AS TO OIL HEATERS

Some people are preparing to use oil heaters as a means of keeping warm during the coal shortage. Oil heaters are all right if properly used; but two things must be remembered in regard to them. First, where an oil heater is used to heat a room, there must be some adequate ventilation or else the impure air will be more dangerous than the cold. Second, it should be understood that gasoline cannot safely be used as a substitute for kerosene in oil heaters for the reason that it is too volatile and would be likely to explode if there was any escape of vapor in the process of filling or otherwise.

Gas heaters are also dangerous unless used with extreme care. They will burn up the air in a room perhaps more quickly than the oil heater, so that in this case good ventilation is equally necessary. Many fatalities have resulted from gas heaters because by accident the lights were put out, leaving the gas to escape into the living rooms. Here again the open window might prevent a fatality. Any departure from the usual order of things has been found to result in accidents. That is why the resort to oil and gas heaters to meet the coal shortage must be handled with great care.

It seemed as if the speed maniacs were unusually active on Sunday, judging from the number of accidents reported from various points in New England. They realize the season is nearly at an end and are anxious to make the most of it. Many of them escaped arrest after causing accidents.

Vessels bound for American ports must drink up their store of liquor before entering the three mile limit. That may mean that their crews will all land in a state of intoxication.

A Thought

"Shakespeare was forbidden of heaven to have any pupils. Neither he nor the sun did, on any morning, the day rose together, nor were there any other maker concerning such things. They were both of them to shine on the evil and on the good."—John Ruskin.

Figures and Corsets

The late Henry Watterson, who was fond of scouring at watering places, was one winter staying at the Hotel Joseph Pulitzer's marble palace near Monte Carlo. He was sitting on the sun-drenched terrace when a group of girls, half-dressed and giggling, were safely out of hearing Mr. Watterson remarked: "Figures don't lie, but these new-fangled corsets keep them from telling the whole truth."

He Was Right

"James," cried Mrs. Timm, sitting up in bed, "there are burglars in our stairs." Mr. Timm, who was getting his fears, replied, "O, no, dear." "I'm sure there are," insisted Mrs. Timm. "Well," Timm said, "I'll tell you. I tell you there are." "I tell you there isn't a burglar downstairs." "Your husband is right, ma'am," interposed a low-voiced individual who had his head into the room at this juncture. "We're upstairs."—London Telegraph.

Didn't Dare to Laugh

"It is Dr. Holmes," says Ernest W. Longfellow in his "Random Memories," who related at a dinner party that once in a small town he had struggled hard to get a laugh out of his audience. All his funniest stories fell flat. Much discouraged, he finished the lecture and was about to depart when one of the select few came up and thanked him warmly for the lecture and remarked that some of the things you said were so funny that it was all we could do not to laugh."

Playful Firemen

The dear old lady pushed the spectacles up on her forehead and, after a look at an indifferent crowd of the newspaper she had been reading, "These firemen must be a fabulous lot," she remarked. "Why do you think that?" asked her grandson. "Because it says as plain as you can read in this paper," the old lady explained, "that after one of the firemen played on the ruins all night. Why could they not go home to bed like other people, instead of romping about like children?"

He Sold Everything

A well-dressed pedler cautiously made his way into the manager's office, and, coughed to call attention to himself. "Well," said the manager, "what do you want?" "I am introducing," the pedler began, "an automatic electric hairbrush." "Can't you see I'm bald?" growled the manager. "Your wife, perhaps?" "She's bald, too," the pedler replied. "I'll sell you 'Perkins' son, sir." "He's one month old and quite bald." "Quite so," said the pedler. "Have you a dog?" "Yes, a Chinese hairless monkey." The pedler dove into another pocket. "Allow me," he said, "to show you the latest thing in flypaper."

'Overheard' Himself

The British Weekly tells the following story of Lady Astor and her old negro nurse, whom she met again during her recent visit to America. "Lady Astor was showing Aunt Betty the picture of Cleopatra, her beautiful hair, and the diamonds with its wonderful jewels and handsome house. Aunt Betty looked at the picture, looked at Lady Astor, looked at Lady Astor. Then she delivered herself as follows: 'Well, Miss Nancy, all I've got to say is that you suitably did over my years self.'"

The Modest Man

The modest man we all admire. The man who's simple, plain, who never tries to boost himself. Let us never think him vain. We like his unassuming ways, his distance for all fuss, his lack of any tendency to interfere with us.

His unobtrusiveness is fine.

For him who tries to boost himself by blowing his own horn. He's patient with a salary. They hardly pay him. He asks but little from the world. And that is what he gets! —Somerville Journal.

NEW YORK FIREBUG SUSPECT RELEASED

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Fire Commissioner Drennan announced yesterday that Albert P. Molnar, who was arrested yesterday in Bayonne, N. J., where he was found near a Catholic church with a candle in his hand, had proven to the satisfaction of the fire department that he had had nothing to do with the incendiary blaze which swept an East Side tenement Sunday morning, causing the death of 16 persons.

The Bayonne police had quoted Molnar as admitting that he was a member of a "firebug" band and that the tenement fire had been set on order of the chief, "Big Nelsie Ralph." He later repudiated this story.

Molnar was sent to Bellevue hospital for observation in the psychiatric ward after he had been questioned by the fire marshal and Commissioner Drennan. Two women, relatives of Molnar, also were questioned. "At no time," said Marshal Brophy, "did Molnar say that he had set the fire." He has established what we consider an alibi and we feel sure that he was not connected with the Lexington avenue fire.

Marshal Brophy explained that Molnar, according to information gathered by the fire department, had been in a deranged mental state for about two weeks as a result of the shock of learning that one of his friends had been killed in an automobile accident.

The list of fatalities was brought to 16 with the death last night of Mrs. Rose Ingles, 82, of burns and injuries.

VOGUE FOR FAISLEY

Short jackets or capes of faisley cashmere trimmed either with fur or fur or combined with a plain fabric are very smart now. Many times the turban is also a draped affair of the faisley material.

WHITE SATIN AND LACE

One of the most beautiful evening frocks worn at a smart function was a gown of white satin and lace, trimmed with a slip of purple cream satin. The frock was very long but had an open hemline.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

All big affairs have many afterthoughts and amusing stories are told of events which happen during the course of a contest. I heard one story today that Butler football game which was played Sunday, George Noonan, the well known printer, is the proud father of a smart little girl. After the football game she came in and said, "Daddy, the Cadets won the game." Daddy Noonan was reading the paper. He dropped it from in front of his face long enough to remark: "Is that so? Well, what was the score?" Little Miss Noonan replied, "It was six to six; didn't, but the Cadets won because they got their six first." Up went the paper in front of Daddy Noonan's face, which was wrinkled with smile. Maybe that little Noonan girl will captain a girls' football team some day.

Judge Enright should be commended for the manner in which he is getting after violators of motor vehicle laws of "bouncing one-man cars." The judge is particularly anxious to stamp out motor vehicle violations, especially by those drivers who drink liquor while driving. I noticed yesterday that a youth had been fined $5 for driving on a trolley car. It was also brought out that he pulled off the trolley when he wanted to get off the car. Judge Enright made it plain that he would not tolerate any such action by the youth of this city and his warning with the broadcasted thoroughness of the city. The judge also has noticed boys and young men riding on the rear ends of these one-man cars. I have witnessed several narrow escapes from a serious accident from this practice. I do hope the boys will take warning from the learned justice and give up the dangerous practice of "bouncing cars."

My attention has been called to the fact several times within the past few weeks of what many people term a nuisance. It appears that the street car sprinkler makes a trip down Merrimack street on Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock belching out volumes of water to right and left. People have told me that to drive along the street within a half hour after the car has made its trip is extremely dangerous owing to the fact that skidding becomes so hard to overcome. Other people, particularly women, have complained that shoes and clothes have been damaged crossing the streets, owing to the muddy condition made by the sprinkler. I also notice that the car taken on its water at the junction of John and Merrimack streets right in the busiest time of the afternoon, thereby holding up traffic. Admittedly that the street needs the water it seems to me there is plenty of time available during the early morning hours or after 11 o'clock at night to do the sprinkling. A dry street during Saturday afternoon would surely be appreciated from all sides.

After considerable study and with a more or less intimate knowledge of downtown traffic conditions, the belief made by the sprinkler, I also notice that the car taken on its water at the junction of John and Merrimack streets right in the busiest time of the afternoon, thereby holding up traffic. Admittedly that the street needs the water it seems to me there is plenty of time available during the early morning hours or after 11 o'clock at night to do the sprinkling. A dry street during Saturday afternoon would surely be appreciated from all sides.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem THE SECRET

(Copyright Lowell Sun, 1922)

What makes a house a Home? It's hard to know: Comfort and ease, a hearth fire all aglow, Pictures and books, a sense of peace and rest, Giving to little things a joyous zest— And deep content that naught can overthrow.

What makes a house a Home? It's hard to tell: I know of hovels where the people dwell In poverty, yet neither grinding toil Nor bitter want and suffering can spoil The hominess that holds them in its spell.

What makes a house a Home? It's hard to say: Children to make it merry day by day, Patience and understanding, and an air Of comradeship about it everywhere; Laughter and health and glad robustness play.

What makes a house a Home? The glamor or That spirit ageless, raising man above All other creatures on this vasty earth; The spirit that gives living all its worth. This is the subtle secret, it is Love That makes a house a Home!

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA AT AUDITORIUM

The Boston Symphony orchestra of 100 musicians comes to Lowell today to give a concert this evening in the Memorial Auditorium. It is but another of the things local art lovers are to be blessed with this winter.

Pierre Monteux, leader, has chosen a program for this city that will carry a popular appeal and will include many splendid orchestral compositions more or less familiar. The Tannhauser overture will have a place and the French school will be represented by three excerpts from Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust."

The house has not been sold out, although the seat sale has been most satisfactory. Tickets will be available after 5 p. m. today at the Auditorium box office.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
The Paramount-Cosmopolitan production, "The Face in the Fog," starring Lionel Barrymore and Seena Owen, is the feature attraction at the Merrimack Square theatre, the first three days of the week. The title is suggestive of the story with Barrymore in the principal role of Boston Blackie Daw, ex-crook, and Seena Owen as the Grand Duchess Tatiana. The play begins in Russia during the time of the dreaded red terror. Petrov is raised to a position of authority and attempts to steal the famous jewels of the Grand Duchess Tatiana. He is frustrated by the attempt by Michael, the faithful servant, and Count Orloff, the silent lover of the beautiful Tatiana, all three of whom escape to America and apparent freedom, but not freedom in reality, for Petrov and a colleague, Count Ivan, take up the pursuit. The action proceeds nicely until Michael in one day found brutally murdered outside a restaurant, and a slip of paper bearing the automobile license number of Blackie Daw.

san's car is tightly grasped to his extended hand. It is Luck Hunt, determined to add Michael to his immediate family. Of course, Blackie did not know of the plot when Michael thrust the jewel into his hands. The jewels are quite rare and he was murdered, so he came to the conclusion that he would wait and watch future developments. Blackie's head is mysteriously throbbing with electrical devices and when the Russian invaders enter the rear door, everything is prepared to receive them. The Russian probe allows themselves to be held up and points to the safe, telling the robbers that the jewels are there. Upon opening the safe, the invaders are shocked to find a miniature electric chair which finally forces them into humble submission. Detective Hunt comes alone and cuts the culprit's throat. A series of developments Blackie reforms and decides to recover the jewels for their rightful owner. This he does in the most evident satisfaction of all concerned.

THE STRAND THEATRE
Lowell theatregoers who have seen the presentation of "Over the Hill" and who have enjoyed it will highly appreciate "Silver Wings," a photo-drama which is being presented at the Strand theatre the first three days of the week. This is a Fox production with Mary Carr of "Over the Hill" fame in the stellar role. Although quite as elaborate as "Over the Hill," this production demonstrating the love of a mother for her son is full of heart-beats.

In "Silver Wings" Miss Carr is even more pleasing than in "Over the Hill" for Mrs. John Webb, the wife of a hard working inventor and mother of a small brood of children, she brings out the traits of character which make a kind mother, the queen of the home. Her only weakness is that she all the desires of her oldest son, Harry, who eventually brings about financial ruin for the family.

Like many a mother, Mrs. Webb yields to her oldest son's every desire to the extent that he loses his sense of proportion just as he grows into manhood. He is drawn into the meshes of unscrupulous promoters and the uncertain paths of high life. These entanglements lead gradually into embroilment, which the mother is powerless to prevent. Her only consolation is that her brother John, who from childhood has been a weakling of the family, John in desperation and rather than to expose his mother, desert from the house and eventually lands at the home of his sister, who a few years prior has also left the old home-land because of ill-fortune.

Another interesting play number is "Broad Daylight," a comedy drama, featuring Lois Wilson in the title role. This play has to do with the life of a mother and her two notorious burglars and his daughter, who is endeavoring to lead her father into the straight path. It unfolds in no uninteresting manner the hard-boiled story to go through, but which eventually lead her to success. The play is original and should be seen to be appreciated. In addition there is a first-class comedy, news pictures of interest and enjoyable musical selections. The program is first class in every respect.

RIALTO THEATRE
With Roy Stewart and Kathleen Kirkham in the leading roles, both supported by a strong cast of players, Peter B. Kyne's great Cosmopolitan hit, "Back to Yellow Jacket," opened a two-day engagement at the Rialto theatre before a capacity audience yesterday afternoon. The production lived well up to its reputation and may be classed as one of the best mining stories ever dramatized for the screen. The interesting chapters of Kyne's great story are unfolded fully in this screen form and to some instances are told even better than his words could describe.

Another feature on the same program and one of especial interest at this time, is "The Last Payment," with Pola Negri in the leading role. This distinguished European actress, internationally, has only recently arrived in the United States and will figure in big screen productions before she completes her visit to America. "Sweet Cookie," an epic of "In the Days of Buffalo Bill," and the Pathé News completes the strong program and today is its last showing.

The story, "Back to Yellow Jacket," opens in a mining desert of western country where "Jim Ballantyne," a happy prospector, is working faithfully to support the pretty wife he has left in an eastern city. He is lonesome for her company and, as he expresses a desire to leave with him, he extends an invitation to come to Yellow Jacket, a small mining town in the heart of the desert where the village gossip, the dance hall and the gun-wielding supreme. On the way west the wife meets a slick gambler and cultivates his acquaintance all the way to her destination. She is met by an old suitor who has struck it rich and who is now settled down in San Francisco. He promises to aid her at any time and she gives her a card bearing his address.

When the wife arrives at Yellow Jacket she finds that the life of the desert is all that she imagined. She longs for the city and for company and welcomes the advances of the gambler friend. This enrages the husband and there are words and strokes, after which she leaves her husband. The husband is broken up and takes to the hills again. When she arrives at San Francisco, the wife has another change of heart and again leaves the protection of the old suitor which act also drives him back to the country. The husband and the suitor meet by a strange freak of fortune and there are deep complications which are only unravelled by a full confession from the troubled wife who has a realized that her husband is working in her behalf.

Strong dramatic force is the feature of Pola Negri's picture, "The Last Payment." It is the story of a young Frenchman who comes to Mexico on cattle interests and falls in love with the wife of a rich cattle owner. He returns with her to Paris and finds to his disgust that she is irresistible to his own father. Flushing them together on one occasion the son blows out his brains and the woman, now awakened to her own treachery and guilt, rushes through a lonely section and collapses on the ties of a railroad. A train rushes by and Pola Negri as "Lois Maurel," has paid the last debt of her own foolishness.

D. F. KEITH'S THEATRE
Fresh from a successful tour of the big-time cities Walter and Emily Walters, making their initial appearance here, made a great hit with the theatregoers who attended the performances at Keith's yesterday. Their act is a feature of the program, and the bill and even after the lights had been dimmed for the conclusion of the act, the applause continued. Ventiquis is their specialty. There have been specialists in this line appearing here in the past, but it is doubtful if any ever made a greater impression than did this pair. Emily Walters, a peach from Georgia, made an appeal to the personal side of the audience with her winning way and, unlike many other specialists in this line, a member in the whole show, she held up her end in grand style. In fact, it might be said that she carried the act with her sterling performance.

The Princeton five, featuring Tom Brown, offered a fine musical act and one in which there was plenty of variety. There are four men and one woman in the act and the manner in which the quintet rattled off anything from grand opera to jazz is surely a tribute to the performers' versatility.

Keeney & Hollis must have many friends in Lowell for the pair seemed to be right at home with the audience and on several occasions a number of the pair called attention to

THESE THREE WOMEN THINK ALIKE

Mrs. Elizabeth Clark of Springer St., South Boston, writes: "I have used Dr. Rueck's Bile Beans, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, and it has aided me very much in regard to constipation. There is no laxative that could come up to it."

Mrs. F. R. Smith, 112 Huntington Ave., Boston, wrote: "I have been taking Dr. Rueck's Bile Beans, the True Family Laxative, for constipation and it has been very effective than anything I ever used."

Mrs. P. Z. Curtis, Natick, R. I., says: "Dr. Rueck's Bile Beans is the best medicine I have ever used. I have always got relieved from indigestion."

Others have been helped by Dr. Rueck's Bile Beans, the True Family Laxative, so why not you? Made of imported herbs of strictly pure quality. 10c-40c-$1.20.—Adv.

some familiar faces in the audience. The two men are travesty performers who give a little of everything and hand it out in a rapid-fire manner. A certain act starts off their number and by the time the men appear before the lights the audience is well warmed up to what is coming.

Earl Baker and Sonnie Bernet in "The Face in the Fog" do every bit as well as did Flanagan and Edwards, the originators of the act. This musical part of the act, which used to make the originators famous, is passed, of course, but the main part of the number is well put over. It is a musical sketch, which opens with the two boys in bed, attempting to get over a hard night before. The act winds up with a song and witty exchanges.

Monroe and Grant, a pair of "bounders" who finish up the bill, have an act a bit out of the ordinary and the audience last night evidently appreciated their efforts to entertain. Judging from the rounds of applause the men received.

The show opens with Jim Margaret and Rose Sheldon in an Indian club where the hour are extremely clever at their work and appreciated. Charles Everdeen and Adelaide Heath, with a musical and character act round out the bill.

What a Well-Known Man Says About It

Home N. Y.—"I am glad indeed to relate the wonderful experience I have had with Doctor 'Anuric' Tablets. Some time ago I began to suffer with rheumatism. It first started in my shoulders and shifted down my arms into my hands, and they swelled and became so stiff that I could scarcely keep or lift anything. The pains also went down into my hips and lower limbs and the joints became stiff so that I could not get around to do my work. I was so bad that I was contemplating the selling out of my business, thinking I was not going to get better, when I saw the Anuric Tablets advertised and decided to give them a trial. The swelling soon left my hands and I could use them as before; the stiffness left my joints, also the pain, and I was again attending to my work with ease. I had the attack. I consider 'Anuric' a most excellent medicine for rheumatic conditions."—John E. Drake, 307 N. Jersey Street.

ARMISTICE DAY IS NATIONAL HOLIDAY

What is a holiday?
What is a legal holiday?
What is a national holiday?
Is the Fourth of July a legal or a national holiday?
Is Christmas Day a legal holiday or a religious observance day?
What is Armistice Day?
Every newspaper editor is familiar with queries like the above. They come in by mail and over the telephone "steep" times a year before and after the various days we set aside to celebrate something or other of note in the calendar of our Father Time.

For years the same old questionnaires have come in from good folks who want to know the difference between a legal holiday and a national holiday. A good many curious inquiries have always had an idea that the Fourth of July was a national holiday and so termed in all official calendars or "annals," and Labor Day—whereof of course that's a national holiday, too, isn't it? Why sure!

Getting down to facts, there never was a holiday in the old U. S. A. that could be correctly termed a "national" holiday.

The World War changed a lot of old customs and it incidentally put a becoming dent in the old homely that used to hang on the moss-covered sanctum wall of an ancient editorial den.

"There are no national holidays in the United States or any territorial possessions."

But that sign has been taken down. We have a national holiday now—a real national holiday without the selling of "legal holiday" fringe that used to be tacked on to every national day that came along with legislative enactment.

Armistice Day is a NATIONAL holiday.

The good books—the favorite almanacs issued by expert editorial hands and approved by our best people agree.

quantified with everyday stuff like legal holidays and state holidays and every other kind of holiday including the annual holiday of the Jinks family reunions—tell us bluntly that—

"Armistice Day is a national holiday. It didn't require enactment by forty more or less different states and territories—not this holiday didn't."

Some of your older readers may remember that quiet morning back there on one historic November 11, when you were just getting into the fourth round of your beauty sleep and had rolled over for the ninth time to find a softer place on the old bed tick, when suddenly a roar and a crash and a jumble of crazy sounds like the blasting of four hundred powder mines, the breaking out of a score of brass bands and a thousand or ten million throats cumulated sounds that couldn't be recorded on an Edison record without busting the whole machine—well you probably remember it folks!

Mrs. Smith, Who Claimed Boy as Own, Now Admits She Was Mistaken

Choquettes Not Desirous of Keeping Boy—Urge He Be Turned Over to State

TAUNTON, Oct. 23.—Eugene Choquette, cowboy and wanderer, was discharged by Judge Austin in the district court at Taunton today, after a short hearing on the charge of kidnapping Russell Smith of Dighton, four years ago. Mrs. Clarence E. Smith of Dighton, who had believed that the boy abandoned in Maine had been the long-lost son, is now convinced that she was mistaken, she told the court today. She declared that all doubt had been removed from her mind that the boy was really Robert Beebe, the son of Mrs. Choquette.

The Choquettes were not desirous of keeping the little boy after winning out in the court controversy, and consented to Robert's being turned over to the state as a neglected child. A formal hearing on this phase of the case will be held in Taunton tomorrow. Choquette promised to settle down and provide a good home for his wife and their one-year-old daughter, Gertrude, and is looking for a job. No steps will be taken to take the young child from him, it was said, if he makes good this promise.

$500,000 TO ACCOUNTS OF ALLIED NATIONS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Aside from the interstate payments of the foreign debts received this month from Great Britain, the treasury was able to credit something over $500,000 to the accounts of Belgium and France. The Belgian item was an interest payment of approximately $150,000 on account of materials purchased from the war department, while the French credit was $350,000 paid into the treasury by the railroad administration in satisfaction of a claim of the French government against that administration.

It was explained that this transaction was in accord with an agreement under which claims of foreign governments against the United States growing out of the war, would be credited to the principal of the debt of those governments to this country.

CARNIVAL BIG SUCCESS

More Than 1500 People Attend K. of C. Carnival in Associate Hall

From the electrically illuminated entrance of the Associate hall, up the "Jack O' Lantern" trail to the ballroom hall, and in the council chambers of the Lowell Knights of Columbus, over 1500 enthusiastic persons wended their way last night to partake of the long-anticipated carnival attractions, artistically arranged for the occasion by the Lowell Knights of Columbus.

Notwithstanding a discouraging downpour, which caused the cancellation of the scheduled street parade, the "First Nighters" arrived early and the scene was filled with the spirit of a splendid concert given by the Lowell Knights of Columbus. Associate hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion with streamers of red, white and blue, and everywhere conspicuous were the large booths, with captivating ornate decorations, surrounding the hall and served as alluring magnets in attracting the much delayed attention of the assembly. Each booth represented a different committee and presented a different attraction, and the respective chairmen were designated as follows:

Porto Santo table, (Pawtucketville) Andrew Molloy, chairman; Santa Lucia (Belleville) Paul J. O'Brien, chairman; Granada (Highlands) Dr. James P. Gaffney, chairman; Porto (The Grove) Timothy J. Finnegan, chairman; Trinidad, (The Acre) Henry P. Doran, chairman; Santa Lucia (Centralville) George J. O'Brien, chairman; Isabella, (South End district) John P. Reane, Jr., chairman.

Realizing that a prize banquet is to be tendered the particular committee bringing in the most money, men and women solicited with such other for the honor of securing the biggest patronage and sold their wares as if by the application of some magic power. Consequently, salubrious dishes of ice cream, soothing beverages, creamed chocolates and other confections, and a variety of other goods, were readily disposed of. Balloons, blankets, silk umbrellas, pipes, beaded bags and stockings, comprised but a small portion of the paraphernalia on exhibition, while the auction of a ton of coal, donated by the Lowell Coal Co., and a parlor suite, donated by the A. E. O'Brien Co., met with instant recognition.

Passing from the main hall to the council room, the visitor met with a still more emphatic reception from the tireless dispensers of chance tickets. The familiar mid-way games, whimsical spin-wheels and commanding voices of the vendors, all adding to the festive atmosphere, were heard on every side. In an ante-room, behind a sinister partition, "Mae Maria Hala, direct from France," revealed the past, present and future of the carnival, who invited her exclusive domain.

While the salespeople were still busily engaged in playing their trades, the torchbearers of the orchestra reverberated throughout the hall, and the "dance" was given and young and old fantastically glided about the polished floor to its accompaniment. Joseph M. Duffy acted as floor director during the dancing. He was ably assisted by John B. McGuire and Jas. P. Keefe.

Late in the evening it was announced that the winner of the precious ton of coal, which incidentally is to be awarded each night by San Salvador table, last evening was John P. O'Brien, of 55 White street. At 11 o'clock, a lively auction sale of goods took place and produced much competitive bidding, at the same time greatly increasing the evening's proceeds, all of which will be turned over to the K. of C. building fund—the main purpose of the carnival.

As a special feature for tonight, a group of entertainers from Boston will enliven the gathering, while on Wednesday afternoon, a monster union picnic will be given for the benefit of the children of the city. The postponed street parade will be held tonight and tomorrow night, and with better weather conditions forecasted, the remaining sessions should meet with the usual patronage. The executive committee, in general charge of the carnival consists of the following: John D. Hart, chairman; Arthur J. O'Neill, secretary; J. Eugene Mullin, Charles J. Langer, John J. Kennedy, Daniel H. Quinn, Dr. J. S. Gaffney, Daniel H. Keefe, John P. Reane, Jr., Timothy P. Rohan, Henry P. Doran, Andrew Molloy and Daniel J. O'Brien, Timothy Finnegan.

LOWELL DISTRICT COURT

There was but one offender brought before Judge Enright for trial in district court this morning. He was charged with drunkenness and received a three months sentence to the house of correction. The sentence was suspended for one year.

A number of other cases listed for trial were continued chiefly for the reasons that either the defendants' witnesses were not ready for trial or for the fact that officers assigned to the trials were called to Cambridge.

Three cases involving motor vehicle violations, two for illegal keeping and one for assault and battery, promised to make up a lengthy session. All fell through for the reasons mentioned above.

Alcide Provencier was charged with drunkenness and operating an auto while under the influence of liquor. His case was continued to November 7. Peter Preston faced like charges but his case was continued to Saturday. Manuel P. Reis was charged with operating an auto so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public and had his case continued to October 31.

George Destrovalous and Joseph Benas were charged with illegal keeping. The former's case was continued to Saturday and the latter's to November 7. Joseph and Thomas Peck, two brothers living in Duxbury, were put over until tomorrow until he could be rounded up.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

EUROPEAN CORN BORER IS CROP DESTROYER

New quarantine regulations for the Middlesex section of Massachusetts have just been issued by the state authorities. The area under quarantine has been extended westward, taking in a portion of Worcester county.

The menace of the corn borer has become almost epidemic in eastern Massachusetts, southern New Hampshire and Vermont, Lowell is included in the whole territory that has been hit hard this season by the scourge that is discouraging the farmers all about the districts where the market gardens flourish.

The shortage of the sweet corn crop this season was never so extraordinary. The season opening early and closing within a few weeks, although some late varieties of corn were on the market in small quantities. The profits were not real, however, many large acreages of corn in and about Lowell and in the directly eastern and northern sections, being badly affected by the borers who have been responsible for the extension of the quarantine regulations to a much larger district this fall.

HEAVY THUNDER STORM SWEEPS LOWELL

Nature's symphony orchestra performed to full house for nearly two hours all over Middlesex county last evening, the unannounced repertoire of the elements ranging from windy gusts to the thunderous dance of the warblers of the wind and cloud.

It was one of the heaviest fall thunder and lightning storms of the season—somewhat unusual for late October, with the mercury much lower than it generally goes when storms of the night and glare variety come out of the west.

In Middlesex county towns the storm appeared to be most severe, with near-cataclysmic that swept streets and sidewalks and did the usual damage. Fruits remaining on tree branches were stripped off cleanly in many towns.

The gale failed to reap its usual harvest of tree limbs and tender shrubbery, although in some sections of the city small branches were scattered around the streets and walks, making excellent kindling material for this morning's breakfast fire.

No reports came in today of extensive damage to building properties from bolts of lightning, although the electrical discharges from the sky were "most continuous" for nearly two hours.

The street department had an assortment of storm troubles to follow up as a result of the downpour and gale. The park department also had numerous jobs to attend to this morning, with several clogged catch basins in the Port Hill district and similar obstructions in the Shedd park section, where the sweep of the water down the inclines carried dirt and small stones into the sewer basins, filling them to the ground level with refuse in a solid mass.

The Lowell Electric Lighting corporation suffered in one or two towns where the troubles began early. In Westford and the Billerica service was slightly impaired for a short time, owing to wires tangled up in tree branches and other storm obstructions hindering through service. None of the troubles were serious, however, and the full service was straightened out quickly by repair and service men, who patrolled the outside lines all night.

On a large telephone exchange was downed out near the junction of Thetford and Fletcher streets, but men of the Telephone Co. worked all night and restored service to the big majority of subscribers affected.

The wind changed quickly after the wind-up of the storm before midnight, cooler weather being on tap this morning, with the mercury around 40 above.

The predictions are for cool weather today and tomorrow, with fresh winds diminishing by tonight.

Another disturbance is reported to be traveling east from a wide territory in the Canadian northwest and North Dakota. It is much colder in the lake regions.

Good Reports From Local Mill—Boots Preparing to Start 2000 Looms

That the Boot mill is making preparations for the starting up of 2,000 looms in the very near future and that within a short time the entire plant will be operating on a full time schedule, is the report made last evening at the meeting of the Loomfixers' union, in the course of the meeting it was also brought out that business conditions at the Tremont & Suffolk mills are daily improving and that these mills will soon be rated as among the busiest in the city. The report from operatives employed at the Appleton company was to the effect that as usual this plant is running full capacity.

The Boot mill, according to reports, had been operating about 40 per cent normal up to a few weeks ago, when orders began to pour in. More operatives were hired and it is said that the plant is now running with about 75 per cent of its employees. According to information received by labor leaders, the company has just received an order that will keep 2000 looms busy for some time and these looms are now being put in shape and started as fast as possible. As soon as work is going full blast on the last order received, it is believed that the entire plant will be running full.

Concerning the Tremont & Suffolk mills, it was stated that more looms are being started every day and of course as fast as new looms are set in operation, machinery in other departments is also put in motion. There seems to be a bigger demand for Lowell manufactured goods and a very busy winter is being predicted by labor leaders.
